(O)CREMIN OCruimin,

Cremin in English, exclusively a west Munster surname; almost all the families are resident in counties Kerry and Cork, though in the 1659 "census" they were more numerous in the Co. Limerick barony of Connelloe, which adjoins these two counties. The tradition is that they are a branch of the MacCarthys, It is interesting to note that in the Bantry district Matheson found the name Cremin interchangeable with MacCarthy. In sixteenth century records such as the Fiants and the Composition Book of Connacht the name MacCremon, MacKremin, often appeared in Co. Galway. This should not be confused with Cremin of Munster, which was a clerk's misspelling of MacRedmond, one of the many aliases of the Burkes of Connacht, and still extant.

Shanagolden-Foynes Parish

History | Churches | Graveyards | Holy Wells | Famous People | Townlands | Priests of the Parish

Brief Parish History & Geographical Location

The parish of Shanagolden/Robertstown/Foynes comprises of the villages of Shanagolden and Foynes and outlying regions. The village of Foynes is situated on the N69 and the village of Shanagolden is situated on the R521.

The area is mentioned in the Annals of the Four Masters. In 968 the King of Munster; Mahon defeated the Norsemen of Limerick and Waterford at Sengualainn in a "red slaughter". In 1124, Turlogh O'Connor gathered a fleet together to cross the Shannon and plundered the lands of the Uí Conaill at Foynes Island. After the defeat of the Munster Geraldines by the English, Shanagolden village was laid out during the 1580s as a plantation village.

Begley tells us that in 1207 the then Bishop, Donat O'Brien, gave control of Shanagolden church to M. O'Melinus, Chantor. Begley also tells us that in 1480, Gerald de Geraldinis took control of both the churches at Robertstown (or Baileroberd as it was called then) and Shanagolden.

The port of Foynes is associated with the flying boats that flew out from the Shannon estuary in the late 1930s and early 1940s to cross the Atlantic to Newfoundland. The service was phased out in 1945 when Shannon Airport began to operate as the gateway to America.

The present population of the parish is approximately 2,400 people according to Canon O'Keeffe. In the last Census, the villages of Foynes and Shanagolden had a population of 558 and 412 respectively.

Churches

Today, there are three churches in use in the parish. The first church that you meet as you enter the parish is at Robertstown. This church is on the main Limerick-Foynes road and it was built in 1830.

Inside the church there is an ornate reredos behind the altar. The High Altar was erected in 1912 by Mary MacNamara O'Brien in memory of her husband Laurence C. O'Brien. Mrs Cornelius Mangan of Aughinish also erected Communion rails in 1912 in memory of her husband but they are no longer in the church. These details are given on plaques on the right and left hand sides of the church respectively.

To the left of the altar there is a statue to the Sacred Heart while on the right of the altar there is a statue to Mary. Various people donated the Stations of the Cross. The church windows are of a plain design.

Fr Patrick McDonnell P.P. built the present day church in Shanagolden during his stay in the parish from 1808 until his death in 1824. At the front of Shanagolden church there is a large depiction of the Crucifixion. There is also a Lourdes Grotto in the grounds of the church to the right in memory of Lizzie Reidy, who died on July 25th 1909. Her brothers and sisters erected the grotto.

To the left of the church, there is a plaque, inscribed in Latin, on the boundary wall. The plaque mentions that Fr Patrick McDonnell P.P. built the church in 1814. Dean Patrick McNamara, who succeeded Fr McDonnell as parish priest in 1824, is also mentioned on the plaque as a church bell was purchased for

The port of Foynes is associated with the flying boats that flew out from the Shannon estuary in the late 1930s and early 1940s to cross the Atlantic to Newfoundland. The service was phased out in 1945 whe
Shannon Airport began to operate as the gateway to America.

The present population of the parish is approximately 2,400 people according to Canon O'Keeffe. In the last Census, the villages of Foynes and Shanagolden had a population of 538 and 472 respectively.

Churches

Today, there are three churches in use in the parish. The first church that you meet as you enter the parish is at Robertstown. This church is on the main Limerick-Foynes road and it was built in 1830.

Inside the church there is an ornate reredos behind the altar. The High Altar was erected in 1912 by Ma
Macnamara O'Brien in memory of her husband Laurence O. O'Brien. Mrs Cornelius Morgan of Rugline also erected Communion rails in 1912 in memory of her husband but they are no longer in the church. These details are given on plaques on the right and left hand sides of the church respectively.

To the left of the altar there is a statue to the Sacred Heart while on the right of the altar there is a statue to Mary. Various people donated the Stations of the Cross. The church windows are of a plain design.

Fr Patrick McDonnell P.P. built the present day church in Shanagolden during his stay in the parish from 1806 until his death in 1828. At the front of Shanagolden church there is a large depiction of the Crucifixion. There is also a Lourdes Grotto in the grounds of the church to the right in memory of Lizzie Reidy, who died on July 25th 1908. Her brothers and sisters erected the grotto.

To the left of the church, there is a plaque, inscribed in Latin, on the boundary wall. The plaque mentions that Fr Patrick McDonnell P.P. built the church in 1814. Dean Patrick McNamara, who succeeded Fr McDonnell as parish priest in 1828, is also mentioned on the plaque as a church bell was purchased for the church in this year. The church was renovated in 1824.

In the porch of the church there is a wooden statue of Mary and Child with the inscription "Mater Dei, Ora Pro Nobis". There is also a picture of the original church in the porch together with a list of the subscribers to the church that was published in the Limerick Gazette on August 9 1814.

A plaque on the left-hand side of the church is in memory of three former parish priests of the parish; Fr Mortimer Collins (died January 1857), Fr James Synan (died May 4 1877) and Fr John Mulqueen (died January 5 1894). All of the church windows are of a plain design.

Michael O'Connor of Mullough donated the altar rails. To the left of the main altar there is a statue of the Sacred Heart while on the right of the altar there is a statue of Mary. Over the main altar there is a crucifix.

In the right transept there is a shrine to Our Lady of Perpetual Succour while in the left transept there is a shrine to the Crucifixion to the memory of Alice M. O'Brien.

Buried in the grounds of the church are:

The original church in Foynes was built in the early 1870s but the design of architect J. J. McCarthy was never completed due to a shortage of funds. John Ryan & Son, Limerick built the church on a site given by Lord Monteagle. The church cost £1,864. 13s. 9d. and over 670 people contributed to its construction. "The Munster News" states in its edition of 18th April 1874 that most of the credit for the building of the church should go to Stephen E. de Vere.

One hundred years later it was decided that the church needed to be renovated. The designers were Sheahan Architects and Ml. Nash, Contractors, carried out the work. Bishop Jeremiah Newman blessed the renovated church, along with the new extension on the 9th March 1975. A Lourdes Grotto was erected at the back of the church in 1987.

Within the church there is a stained glass window of the Body and Blood at the back door. In the back porch of the church there is a picture of Our Lady of Limerick. On the right wall of the church opposite the altar, there is a crest of the Lamb of God that is cut from stone. Also on this side of the church there is a shrine to Our Lady of Perpetual Succour.

To the right of the main altar is a mosaic of Mary and Child and further right there is a mosaic to St Theresa of Liseux. On the opposite side of the church there is a mosaic of the Sacred Heart while further left there is a mosaic of St Joseph.

The first church in Robertstown was near Churchfield. Behind the present day church in Robertstown is the ruin of the previous Robertstown church and graveyard. The grounds are tidy and well kept and the church ruins have been partially rebuilt. Westropp states that Robert de Guer probably founded the church in the early part of the thirteenth century. Ardineer is a townland in Robertstown, and although there is no trace of a church in the present townland, it is believed that the original Robertstown church may have been situated here.

The church ruin in Shanagolden was converted into a place of Protestant worship and a tower was built on the site when the conversion took place. As there is a mention of a "lofty square tower built in 1815" in the Postal Directory of Munster, it can be assumed that this is one and the same tower.

About a mile from Shanagolden are the ruins of another church. Kilmoylan church is at the eastern end of the parish and Westropp measured the church as 35 feet by 18 feet. The west gable fell in the Night of the Big Wind in 1839.

There is also a church ruin in Mount Pleasant graveyard. Near the church ruin is an altar. Both the church ruin and the altar are in good condition.

Knockpatrick church is situated 572 feet above sea level and gives a stunning view of the Shannon Estuary and the surrounding countryside. According to legend, St Patrick consecrated the church at Knockpatrick when he visited the area in 448 AD. He also blessed all that lay west of him, as he never ventured as far as Kerry. Westropp wrote that the Danes burned Knockpatrick in 1114.

To the east of the church there are six stones that are called 'Suíochán Pádraig', St Patrick's Seat. According to Mainchín Seoighe, the traditional religious practice at Knockpatrick involved reciting three Rosaries: one around the wall of the burial grounds, one while moving clockwise around St Patrick's Well and the third at Suíochán Pádraig.

Westropp also mentions churches at Aughinish and Ardaneer but the sites of these churches are unknown today. There was also an old church at Dysert or Morgans as it is now called. It is believed that this church was located near Barrigone well. The name Morgans was derived from the Irish Muingeadain, meaning a 'maritime spot'. The church is believed to have been built in the 15th century. It is said to have been built by two sisters, but neither their names nor their surnames are remembered.

Abbey

Manisternagalliaghduff Abbey, in the parish of Shanagolden/Robertstown/Foynes, is more commonly known as Mainstir na gCailleach Duff. This can be translated as the Monastery of the Black (Veiled) Nuns. The ruins are situated about two miles east of Shanagolden. Extensive ruins remain of this monastery, which was reputedly founded in the first half of the thirteenth century. According to Sean Spellissy, the Earl of Desmond complained at one stage that the nuns were leading "loose and dissolute lives". Although the then Pope, Pope Martin V ordered the suppression of the monastery in 1432, the monastery continued until the mid-sixteenth century when it finally closed. Westropp tells us that a new parish was formed around it in 1586.

Graveyards

There are five graveyards in the parish of Shanagolden/Foynes. Robertstown graveyard is situated in the grounds of a church ruin, about a quarter of a mile by road from the present day Robertstown church. At Robertstown graveyard the oldest headstone that we came across was from November 1788 and it was in memory of Joanna O'Brien.

Mount Pleasant graveyard is situated close to the boundary line between the parish of Shanagolden/Robertstown/Foynes and Askeaton/Ballysteen parish. At Mount Pleasant the oldest headstone that we found was from 1817 but according to Canon O'Keeffe's records, the oldest headstone in the graveyard dates from 1785, and is in memory of a W. Casey who died aged 46.

Shanagolden graveyard is situated across from the Community Hall. The oldest headstone that we came across in Shanagolden cemetery dated from 1814. However, according to Canon O'Keeffe's records on the headstones in the cemetery, the oldest headstone is from 1703. It is in memory of M. Pierce Green who died on November 12th 1703. On the headstone are the words "killed by the Tories".

There is also a graveyard located in the grounds of Kilmoylan church ruin. In Kilmoylan graveyard, the oldest headstone is in memory of Owne Mulkere who died on the 10th of March 1808 at the age of 92. There is also a plaque to the Desmond and Crimmins families in the ruins of the old church.

The fifth graveyard surrounds the historic site of Knockpatrick. The oldest headstone here is in memory of Fr Philip O'Nolain who died in 1738 after only one year as parish priest of Shanagolden. Also buried on Knockpatrick is Charlotte Smith O'Brien, the daughter of William Smith O'Brien who was a Member of Parliament in Westminster for over 20 years, where he represented his constituents with distinction. Charlotte died on June 3 1909 aged 63.

Holy Wells

There are two Holy Wells in the parish where tradition and devotions are continued. In the Robertstown part of the parish, Borrigone Well is situated in the townland of Craggs. This well is located beside an inlet of the Shannon River and seaweed can be seen around it. The well is enclosed. The Parish council laid down a concrete walkway in the 1960s. A covered altar has been built beside the well. There is a plaque in memory of Noel O'Shaughnessy, who was from Borrigone, on the wall of the altar shelter.

The feastday of the well is the 15th of August. In the past, a large pattern was held on the 14th and 15th of August. Danaher tells us that bonfires lit up the night-time sky and the celebrations continued throughout the night. Other days of devotion at the well were the Saturday before the 1st of May and the 24th of June.

It is claimed that the well can cure many illnesses. Rags were been left at the well as offerings. It is believed that the well takes its name from the holy monk St Muirdebhair the wise, whose feastday is on the 3rd of November (although Maureen Jackson claims it is the 3rd of September). St Muirdebhair baptised new Christians at the well. With the passing of time, the pronunciation changed, the "M" became a "B" and thus the well was called Barrigone.

The legends about the well are many and varied. The water would not boil, the well moved when cursed and if your wish were to be granted, you would see a trout in the well. Another legend tells that the well spoke to a woman who was about to wash clothes in the well. A blind horse was brought to the well to be cured. The horse was cured but the owner became blind.

The most interesting legend about the well concerned a girl who was going to America. Before she left for America, the girl took some pebbles from the well. During the journey across the Atlantic, a fierce storm occurred and the girl threw the pebbles into the sea. The storm abated and the pebbles returned to the well.

Many old people believe that immersion in the spring could avert imminent death. The prayers that are said while doing a round of the well are Our Father, Hail Mary and Glory Be. Old people would pick up seven pebbles and drop one every time they completed a round at the well.

St Patrick's Well is situated on Knockpatrick hill. It is close to the foot of the hill, to the left of the road. A statue of St Patrick has been erected at the site and there are paths leading to the well from the road. Rounds, consisting of seven decades of the Rosary, are still made at the well. According to Danaher, rags were left as offerings on whitethorn trees by the well. Today, two evergreen trees grow by the well.

There are a number of legends concerning the well. The water from the well could cure sore eyes. The well moved when cursed. A druid tried to poison St Patrick here. St Patrick once put a curse on sinners but this was later transferred to birds and a dead bird can sometimes be found at the well on certain days of the year.

Danaher also says that St Patrick left a gold cup at the well. This cup or chalice was kept at the well until 1785 when a member of the O'Niadh (Neville) family, the stewards of the site of Knockpatrick, pledged it to a Mr Roche of Limerick. Mr. Roche then brought it to Paris where it was last heard of in 1840.

Danaher also mentioned St Senan's well in Shanagolden at the townland of Shanagolden Demesne. This well was covered in but it is believed that the well was situated where the pumphouse is now located. This pumphouse is across from the community hall.

Famous People

St Senan

During St Patrick's travels around Ireland on his mission to convert the people from paganism, he was asked about the future. St Patrick replied that a child named Sanus would succeed him as bishop and that he would convert the whole island.

It is believed that St Senan was born in 488 AD in Magh Lacha, four miles north east of Kilrush. At the age of fourteen, Senan refused to fight for his tribe the Corca Baiscinn in a local feud against the Corkamoroe. He hid in a haggard and fell fast asleep. The haggard was set ablaze and Senan was found by the Corkamoroe. He was set free, however, as they believed that God was with him.

Senan worked on the family farm as a young man and was driving cattle home one evening for his father when his way was blocked by the tide. Senan looked for food and lodgings from a man called Mieger but he was refused. Senan began to pray to God for help and the water receded long enough for him to get the cattle across the peninsula at Traught-Fannon. That night Mieger's place was destroyed by fire and all the menfolk were killed.

Senan entered the religious life under the tutelage of the holy Casidanus at Irrus before studying at Kilmanagh in Ossory under St Natalis. While here, St Senan performed a miracle by restoring life to an only son on the pleadings of a grief-stricken mother. Senan's popularity now increased and he decided to leave the monastery. For a number of years, Senan wandered the country and finally settled in at Ferns, Co.Wexford under Malachy. On Malachy's death, Senan became the abbot of the monastery.

On the way home from a pilgrimage in Rome, Senan received his Bishop's Staff. On his return to Ireland, he founded a monastery at Inniscarra in Cork. Senan was looking for "His place of Resurrection". He finally discovered it at Scattery Island when an angel showed him the island from a hill overlooking the Shannon. Prior to Senan's arrival, a sea monster called "the cathach" guarded the island. The monster rushed to devour Senan but he blessed the creature and asked him to depart in the name of Jesus. The angel promised Senan that none of his monks would drown in the sea crossing. From this story, a legend has grown claiming that pebbles from the island would protect against shipwreck.

Many people came to Scattery Island seeking a monastic life, including St Ciaran of Clonmacnoise and St Brendan from Kerry. On many occasions, the crowds were so great that Senan was close to leaving the area but he always stayed on the island. His private retreat was at Bishop's Island, which is a sea-stack on the West Clare coast. Senan lived in a beehive hut while on the island, which was surrounded by vertical cliffs on all sides.

It is believed that Senan died in 544 AD and is buried on Scattery Island in a place called 'St Senan's Bed'. Senan's feastday is celebrated on the 8th of March. As St Senan was a bishop, he created the diocese of Inis Chathaigh. The diocese survived until the Synod of Rathbrassil in 1111 AD when it was divided up amongst the dioceses of Ardfert, Killaloe and Limerick.

Senan also formed a community in Plouzané in northwest Brittany. Although the exact date when Senan visited here is unclear, Noel O'Shaughnessy claims that he visited Tours on his homeward journey from Rome. Jean Francois Simon, an historian, discovered the link between Plouzané and Kilrush in 1978. Plouzané, when translated, means 'Senan's Parish'. The 'Life of St. Senan' was written in 1629 by Albert Le Grand and translated in 1993 by Jean-Michel Picard.

The list of Priests from 1704 to 1836 is compiled from information gained in Begley's History of the Diocese of Limerick Vol. III page 598. The remaining years are compiled from the Catholic Directories. Information contained in a directory of any given year refers to what happened the previous year. For example if a priest is recorded in the 1954 directory as being in a particular parish, this would mean that he was actually there in 1953.

Shanagolden

Civil Parish:	Shanagolden
Diocese:	Limerick
Barony:	Shanid
Poor Law Union:	Glin
Catholic Parish:	Shanagolden & Foynes

SHANAGOLDEN, a post-town and parish, in the Shanid Division of the barony of Lower Connello, county of Limerick, and province of Munster, 20 miles (W.) from Limerick, and 116 (W.S.W.) from Dublin, on the road from Rathkeale to Listowel; containing, in 1831, 3213 inhabitants, of which number, 847 were in the town, the population of which has since that time considerably increased. The parish comprises 3663 statute acres, as applotted under the tithe act; about two-thirds are under cultivation, producing abundant crops of corn, potatoes, and clover, the rest being rough pasture: the land is remarkably fertile, particularly near the town, and in some places is tolerably well cultivated. The town consists of a long irregular street, comprising 150 houses, of which three only are slated, the remainder being thatched, and all are small and ill-built. It is a constabulary police station; and petty sessions are held on alternate Mondays. Fairs take place on the Wednesday after Trinity-Sunday, and on Sept. 4th, chiefly for cattle and pigs. A new line of road from the town joins the mail road on the banks of the Shannon, at Robertstown, opening a ready communication with the county of Kerry. The substratum in and around the town is limestone, of which blocks of a very large size are procured for cutting into gate-posts, pillars, slabs, &c., but are all sent away, as no attempt has been made to cut or work them on the spot. Black and grey marble of very superior quality are extensively found throughout the lower part of the parish, but are only worked for repairing the roads, or fencing the fields. The town and the surrounding lands are principally the property of the Rt. Hon. T. Spring Rice, Chancellor of the Exchequer, whose seat is about three miles distant. Close adjoining the town is Shanagolden House, the elegant residence of the Rev. G. Vincent; and the glebe-house, more than a mile distant from the church, is at present occupied by J. Fitzgerald, Esq. The living is a rectory and vicarage, in the diocese of Limerick; the rectory forms the corps of the precentorship of the cathedral of Limerick, and the vicarage is in the patronage of the Precentor. The tithes amount to £200, one-third of which is payable to the vicar, and the remainder to the precentor. The glebe-house was erected by aid of a gift of £400 and a loan of £232, in 1813, from the late Board of First Fruits: the glebe comprises 11½ acres, being composed of three portions, one near the church, another near the little village called Barracks, and the third where the glebe-house stands; the last was purchased by the same Board. The church is a large and handsome edifice, apparently very old; the chancel being in ruins, the nave was fitted up for divine service, having been roofed and a lofty square tower built, in 1815, by aid of a loan of £450 from the before-mentioned Board; the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have recently granted £101 for its repair. In the R. C. divisions this parish is the head of a union or district, comprising the parishes of Shanagolden, Kilmoylan, and Robertstown; the chapel is a large plain edifice, situated on a hill to the east of the town. There are two mathematical male schools for adults, in which about 25 pupils; and there are 4 private schools, in which are about 150 children.

About a mile south from the town, in the parish of Kilmoylan, is Shanid castle, one of the most impregnable of those possessed by the Earls of Desmond, and from which they took their war cry of Shanid-a-boo: this castle, which gives name to a baronial division of the county, occupies the top of a steep hill, and is surrounded by a strong rampart and fosse. Not far distant is a very extensive circular fort, divided by earthworks into four compartments; but these subdivisions appear to be of later date than the original formation of the fort. A mile north from the town is Knockpatrick, said to be the highest land in the county, whence the surrounding country is seen stretching in extensive perspective, with the majestic course of the Shannon through its numerous windings to the sea. On the summit are the remains, held in great veneration, of an old church, supposed to have been consecrated by St. Patrick, whose chair is shewn in an adjoining field, composed of five rude unhewn stones; and not far distant is a well, dedicated to him. Of which various legends are related: the side walls of this venerable edifice are nearly entire, through the east and west gables have entirely disappeared, and the space of the western wall is occupied by a large and curious tomb belonging to the families of Bourke and Griffin. From this hill are extensive and interesting views, embracing the high grounds of the counties of Tipperary, Galway, Cork and Kerry, with the rich lands of Clare and Limerick in the foreground, and the towns of Limerick and Ennis rising beyond the expanded waters of the Shannon. from Lewis' Topographical Dictionary and Gazetteer

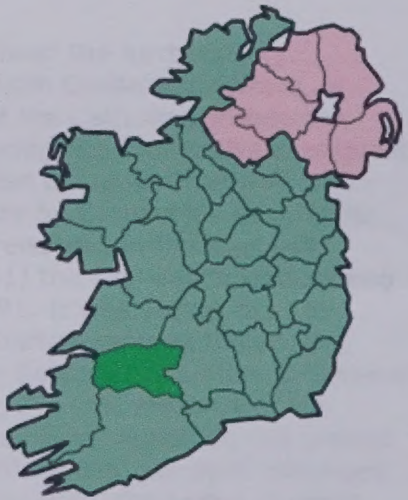
County Limerick, Ireland

Overview



County Limerick (Contae Luimnigh) is a county in the province of Munster, located in the mid-west of Ireland with County Clare to the north, County Cork to the south, County Kerry to the west and County Tipperary to the east. The River Shannon flows through the city of Limerick and into the Atlantic Ocean at the north of the county. Below the city, the waterway is known as the Shannon Estuary. Because the estuary is shallow, the county's most important port is several kilometres west of Limerick city, at Foynes.

Newcastle West is the most important county town outside of Limerick city. Other towns mainly lie along the Limerick - Tralee roads (N69, N20) and Limerick - Cork road (N21).

History

It is thought that man had established himself in the Lough Gur area of the county as early as 3000 BC, while megalithic remains found at Duntryleague date back further to 3500 BC. The arrival of the Celts around 400 BC brought about the division of the county into petty kingdoms or tuath.

Christianity came to Limerick in the 5th Century, and resulted in the establishment of important monasteries in Limerick, at Ardpatrick, Mungret and Kileedy. From this golden age in Ireland of learning and art (5th - 9th Centuries) comes one of Ireland's greatest artefacts, The Ardagh Chalice, a masterpiece of metalwork, which was found in a west Limerick fort in 1868.

The arrival of the Vikings in the 9th century brought about the establishment of the city on an island on the River Shannon in 922. The death of Donal Mór O'Brien, King of Munster in 1194 resulted in the invading Normans taking control of Limerick, and in 1210, the County of Limerick was formally established. Over time, the Normans became "more Irish than the Irish themselves" as the saying goes. The Tudors in England wanted to curb the power of these Gaelicised Norman Rulers and centralise all power in their hands, so they established colonies of English in the county. This caused the leading Limerick Normans, The Geraldines, to revolt against English Rule in 1569. This sparked a savage war in Munster known as the Desmond Rebellions, during which the province was laid to waste, and the confiscation of the vast estates of the Geraldines.

The county was to be further ravaged by war over the next century. Limerick was not fought over for most of the Irish Confederate Wars, of 1641-53, being safely behind the front lines of the Catholic Confederate Ireland. However it became a battleground during the Cromwellian conquest of Ireland in 1649-53. The invasion of the forces of Oliver Cromwell in the 1650s included a twelve month siege of the city by Cromwell's New Model Army led by Henry Ireton. The city finally surrendered in October 1651. During the Jacobite-Williamite War (1689-1691) the city was to endure two further sieges, one in 1690 and another in 1691. It was during the 1690 siege that the infamous destruction of the Williamite guns at Ballyneety, near Pallasgreen was carried out by the heroic defender of Limerick, General Patrick Sarsfield The Catholic Irish, comprising the vast majority of the population, had eagerly supported the Jacobite cause, however, the second siege of Limerick resulted in a defeat to the Williamites. Sarsfield managed to force the Williamites to sign the Treaty of Limerick, the terms of which were satisfactory to the Irish. However the Treaty was subsequently dishonoured by the English and the city became known as the City of the Broken Treaty. See Also Sieges of Limerick.

The 18th and 19th centuries saw a long period of persecution against the Catholic majority, many of who lived in poverty. The Great Famine of the 1840s set in motion mass emigration and a huge decline in Irish as a spoken language in the county. This began to change around the beginning of the 20th century, as changes in law from the British Government enabled the farmers of the county to purchase lands they had previously only held as tenants, paying high rent to absentee landlords.

Limerick saw much fighting during the War of Independence of 1919 to 1921 particularly in the east of the county. The subsequent Irish Civil War

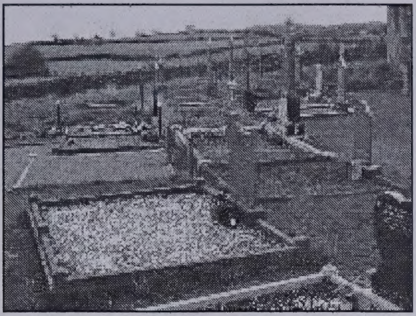
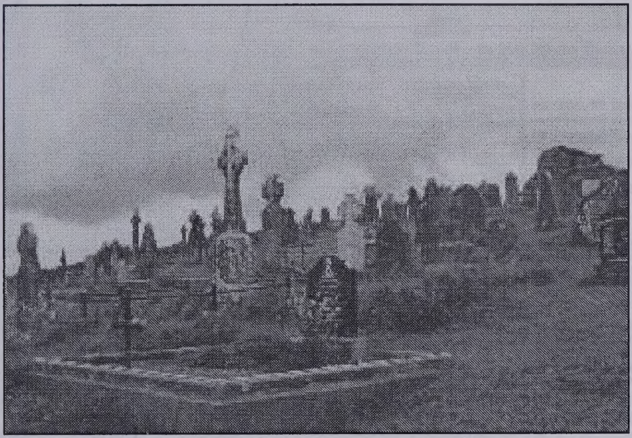
Crimmins Family Crest / Crimmins Coat of Arms

This surname CRIMMINS is exclusively a west Munster surname, almost all the families so called are resident in counties Kerry and Cork or have recently migrated from there, though in the 1659 'census' they were more numerous in the county Limerick barony of Connelloe, which adjoins these two counties. The tradition is that they are a branch of the MacCarthy's and in that connexion in the Bantry district the name is interchangeable with MacCarthy. Ireland is one of the earliest sources of the development of patronymic names in northern Europe. Irish Clan or bynames can be traced back to the 4th century B.C. and Mac (son of) and O (grandson or ancestor of) evolved from this base, the original literal meaning of which has been lost due to the absence of written records and linguistic ambivalences which subtly but inexorably became adopted through usage. Genealogists and lexographers accept that the patronymic base does not refer to a location, quite the contrary. The use of the prefix 'Bally' (town of) attaching to the base name, identifying the location. The base root was also adopted by people residing in the demographic area without a common ancestor. These groups called 'Septs' were specially prevalent in Ireland. The first Normans arrived in Ireland in the 12th and 13th centuries to form an alliance with the King of Leinster. Under Elizabeth I in the 16th century, settlers from England established themselves around Dublin, then under English control and Presbyterian Scots emigrated to Ulster, introducing English and Scottish roots. In various sixteenth century records such as the Fiants and the Composition Book of Connaught the name MacCremon, and MacKremin often appear in County Galway. This, however, must not be confused with Cremin of Munster, being in fact a clerk's misspelling of MacRedmond, and one of the many aliases of the Burkes of Connacht, and still extant. It has long been a matter of doubt when the bearing of coats of arms first became hereditary and it was not until the Crusades that Heraldry came into general use. Men went into battle heavily armed and were difficult to recognise. It became the custom for them to adorn their helmets with distinctive crests, and to paint their shields with animals and the like. Coats of arms accompanied the development of surnames, becoming hereditary in the same way.



© Kilmoylan graveyard

There is also a graveyard located in the grounds of Kilmoylan church ruin. In Kilmoylan graveyard, the oldest headstone is in memory of Owne Mulkere who died on the 10th of March 1808 at the age of 92. There is also a plaque to the Desmond and Crimmins families in the ruins of the old church.



© Knockpatrick graveyard

The fifth graveyard surrounds the historic site of Knockpatrick. The oldest headstone here is in memory of Fr Philip O'Nolain who died in 1738 after only one year as parish priest of Shanagolden. Also buried on Knockpatrick is Charlotte Smith O'Brien, the daughter of William Smith O'Brien who was a Member of Parliament in Westminster for over 20 years, where he represented his constituents with distinction. Charlotte died on June 3 1909 aged 63.

Shanagolden Church

© Shanagolden Church

Fr Patrick McDonnell P.P. built the present day church in Shanagolden during his stay in the parish from 1808 until his death in 1824. At the front of Shanagolden church there is a large depiction of the Crucifixion. There is also a Lourdes Grotto in the grounds of the church to the right in memory of Lizzie Reidy, who died on July 25th 1909. Her brothers and sisters erected the grotto.

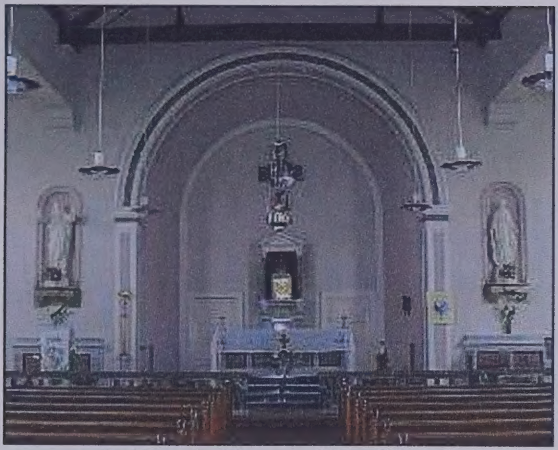
To the left of the church, there is a plaque, inscribed in Latin, on the boundary wall. The plaque mentions that Fr Patrick McDonnell P.P. built the church in 1814. Dean Patrick McNamara, who succeeded Fr McDonnell as parish priest in 1824, is also mentioned on the plaque as a church bell was purchased for the church in this year. The church was renovated in 1824.



© Altar in Shanagolden Church

In the porch of the church there is a wooden statue of Mary and Child with the inscription "Mater Dei, Ora Pro Nobis". There is also a picture of the original church in the porch together with a list of the subscribers to the church that was published in the Limerick Gazette on August 9 1814.

A plaque on the left-hand side of the church is in memory of three former parish priests of the parish; Fr Mortimer Collins (died January 1857), Fr James Synan (died May 4 1877) and Fr John Mulqueen (died January 5 1894). All of the church windows are of a plain design.

Michael O'Connor of Mullough donated the altar rails. To the left of the main altar there is a statue of the Sacred Heart while on the right of the altar there is a statue of Mary. Over the main altar there is a crucifix.

© Statues in Shanagolden Church

In the right transept there is a shrine to Our Lady of Perpetual Succour while in the left transept there is a shrine to the Crucifixion to the memory of Alice M. O'Brien.

Church Ruins

© Ruins at Robertstown

The first church in Robertstown was near Churchfield. Behind the present day church in Robertstown is the ruin of the previous Robertstown church and graveyard. The grounds are tidy and well kept and the church ruins have been partially rebuilt. Westropp states that Robert de Guer probably founded the church in the early part of the thirteenth century. Ardineer is a townland in Robertstown, and although there is no trace of a church in the present townland, it is believed that the original Robertstown church may have been situated here.

© Tower at Shanagolden

The church ruin in Shanagolden was converted into a place of Protestant worship and a tower was built on the site when the conversion took place. As there is a mention of a "lofty square tower built in 1815" in the Postal Directory of Munster, it can be assumed that this is one and the same tower.

© Kilmoylan Church

About a mile from Shanagolden are the ruins of another church. Kilmoylan church is at the eastern end of the parish and Westropp measured the church as 35 feet by 18 feet. The west gable fell in the Night of the Big Wind in 1839.

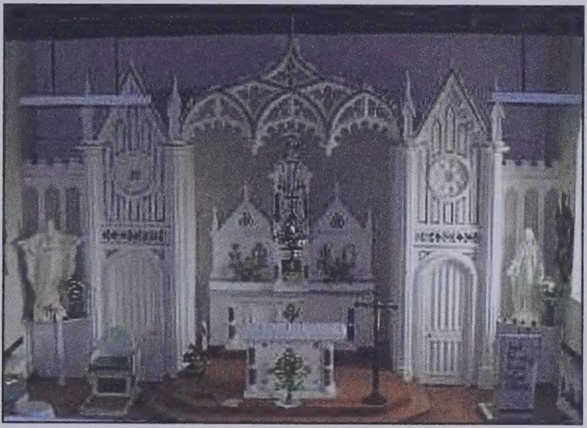
Robertstown Church

© Robertstown Church

Today, there are three churches in use in the parish. The first church that you meet as you enter the parish is at Robertstown. This church is on the main Limerick-Foynes road and it was built in 1830.



© Altar in Robertstown Church

Inside the church there is an ornate reredos behind the altar. The High Altar was erected in 1912 by Mary MacNamara O'Brien in memory of her husband Laurence C. O'Brien. Mrs Cornelius Mangan of Aughinish also erected Communion rails in 1912 in memory of her husband but they are no longer in the church. These details are given on plaques on the right and left hand sides of the church respectively.

© Statue of Blessed Virgin Mary in Robertstown Church

To the left of the altar there is a statue to the Sacred Heart while on the right of the altar there is a statue to Mary. Various people donated the Stations of the Cross. The church windows are of a plain design.

What to do next

1. Always double-check the original image of the index page to make sure that all the details, and especially volume and page numbers, are correct before ordering the certificate.
2. Order the birth certificate online and wait for your certificate to be delivered. Bear in mind that certificates relating to overseas births will not always be as detailed as certificates relating to births that occurred in the UK.
3. Confirm or learn the parents' names from the certificate.
4. If the certificate suggests that the parents were married, search the marriage indexes for their marriage – in extreme cases, you may find the marriage up to 20 or 25 years before the birth.
5. If the child was born illegitimately, it is possible that only the name of the mother will be given on the certificate; there will then be a blank or a striking through where the father's name would otherwise be.

Can't find who you're looking for? Try following these simple steps:

1. Try leaving the 'region' field blank to start with. Your ancestor may not have been born in the region you think, so selecting this county will not lead you to your ancestor.
2. Widen the year range. The year you think your ancestor was born may not be accurate, so allowing for a longer date span could produce the results you need.
3. Always keep the 'Include variants' boxes ticked. Your ancestors' names may be spelled differently to how you think, so the variants search will provide you with results you may not otherwise have received.

Abstract of the Case of Hospl.
Sergt. Thomas Donovan Aged 48
Proposed to be discharged.

Impaired Vision:
and Dyspnoea Continua:

This man was in Hospl. at Malta in the year 1824. where he was under treatment 44 day for Ophthalmia. In consequence of which the vision of both Eyes was much impaired. but particularly that of the Right which was almost totally lost.

He has laboured under Dyspnoea Continua for the last 2 years. And the slightest exertion brings on such difficulty of Breathing as to prevent him doing any duty. The first attack of Thoracic Disease occurred in Nov. 1834 in consequence of Cold Caught in the passage from Chatham to Cork where the Depôt

Depôt was ordered -

I consider that his Disabilities have been caused in and by the Service, and not by any Misconduct of his own -

Sergt. Donovan has been employed as Hospl. Sergt. for nearly 2 years. In which situation he has always conducted himself with great propriety -

In my opinion He is unfit for the duties of a Soldier -

Subject: Military Research

Anthony Adolph referred you to me.
I recently contacted the Records Office with a request for the following record & was told it was not easily identifiable. I thought I had specific details!

What I have is:

WO 23/45

WO 23/45 Chelsea Registers 95th Foot 1845-54 → entry on bottom of page is illegible (on film) → applied to see original (rather than microfilm)...

John Crimmins
1-0
Date of Admission 9 Aug. 1842
Residence - Limerick → see emailed digi-shots.
Liverpool - 1 Aug. 1847
Newcastle - 1 Sept. 1847
84686/63 1850
Canada 1 July 1851

What I am trying to obtain is a paper (or digital) copy of the original papers. A.J. McMillan, a researcher in 1978, found the record but only abstracted some of the information.

What would you advise?

At this time I am only interested in the above record but may be interested in some other research in the future.

Sincerely,

Helen E. Read

c) If the customer's calculation of the number of copies required proves to be an underestimate, The National Archives will complete the order but will retain the copies until the balance of payment has been received. If it proves to be an overestimate, The National Archives will refund customers where the balance exceeds £3.00 (or £6.00 for overseas customers).

6. The National Archives will securely package copies supplied by post and will not accept liability in the event of damage or loss in transit. It can, however, arrange insurance cover at an additional cost if customers request it when they place their order. Such cover will usually be provided by a lower rate international recorded delivery unless otherwise requested by the customer.

7. Customers are advised to seek advice from their internet service provider before placing any order for electronic images to be delivered electronically. Customers should note that digital images, unless specified otherwise, are supplied in compressed jpeg format via a link to The National Archives' DocumentsOnline site or in tif format on CD-ROM. A0 sized images can only be requested on CD-ROM.

8. The National Archives will normally aim to provide research quality copies that sufficiently convey written or graphic information from the original document. There can be no guarantee that this will be possible or that the copies will be suitable for any other purpose due to the quality of the original documents. Higher quality copies, or copies suitable for other purposes, can be supplied if requested when placing an order. Customers are advised to discuss their requirements with staff from The National Archives to ensure the most suitable process can be recommended.

9. Image sizes
   a) Photocopies and digitally scanned images: The National Archives will normally produce copied images, which are approximately the same size as the originals. Photocopies will normally be printed onto sheets of paper of the appropriate size in the A2 to A3 range (within preservation guidelines and at the discretion of the operator) and charges will be based on the size of the paper. In the case of digitally scanned copies the images will normally be printed onto paper approximately the same size as the original and charges will be based on the size category into which the paper falls (A0 to A1, A1 to A2, A2 to A3 and A3 to A4). The National Archives can supply images of sheets of paper of different sizes if requested when placing an order.
   b) Prints from microfilm: images will normally be printed onto A3 size paper and may be larger or smaller than the original documents.
   c) Photographs or transparencies can be supplied in the specified dimensions. These will normally be required if a copy is for publication. The Image Library provides such images at the rates indicated in the appropriate leaflet.

Deemed acceptance

10. The National Archives will display these terms and conditions at all points of sale. Customers will be deemed to have accepted the terms and conditions in completing an order form, submitting a counter order or accepting documents by any means.

Supplying copies

4. Prices quoted on estimates are valid for three months.

5. Orders for copies placed in person at one of The National Archives' record copying counters are accepted on the following conditions:
   a) The National Archives may cancel the order if the copying process paid for, subsequently proves to be unsuitable. For example, if it may damage the document or fail to produce good copies. If an order is cancelled for such reasons The National Archives will offer to refund the payment and if feasible will provide an estimate for completing the work by an alternative copying process.
   b) The National Archives may cancel the order and refund payments if markers are found to be missing, documents are incorrectly marked up, or customers' instructions are unclear.
   c) If the customer's calculation of the number of copies required proves to be an underestimate, The National Archives will complete the order but will retain the copies until the balance of payment has been received. If it proves to be an overestimate, The National Archives will refund customers where the balance exceeds £3.00 (or £6.00 for overseas customers).

There can be no guarantee that this will be possible or that the copies will be suitable for any other purpose due to the quality of the original documents. Higher quality copies, or copies suitable for other purposes, can be supplied if requested when placing an order. Customers are advised to discuss their requirements with staff from The National Archives to ensure the most suitable process can be recommended.

9. Image sizes

Supplying copies

4. Prices quoted on estimates are valid for three months.

5. Orders for copies placed in person at one of The National Archives' record copying counters are accepted on the following conditions:
   a) The National Archives may cancel the order if the copying process paid for, subsequently proves to be unsuitable. For example, if it may damage the document or fail to produce good copies. If an order is cancelled for such reasons The National Archives will offer to refund the payment and if feasible will provide an estimate for completing the work by an alternative copying process.
   b) The National Archives may cancel the order and refund payments if markers are found to be missing, documents are incorrectly marked up, or customers' instructions are unclear.
   c) If the customer's calculation of the number of copies required proves to be an underestimate, The National Archives will complete the order but will retain the copies until the balance of payment has been received. If it proves to be an overestimate, The National Archives will refund customers where the balance exceeds £3.00 (or £6.00 for overseas customers).

6. The National Archives will securely package copies supplied by post and will not accept liability in the event of damage or loss in transit. It can, however, arrange insurance cover at an additional cost if customers request it when they place their order. Such cover will usually be provided by a lower rate international recorded delivery unless otherwise requested by the customer.

7. Customers are advised to seek advice from their internet service provider before placing any order for electronic images to be delivered electronically. Customers should note that digital images, unless specified otherwise, are supplied in compressed jpeg format via a link to The National Archives' DocumentsOnline site or in tif format on CD-ROM. A0 sized images can only be requested on CD-ROM.

8. The National Archives will normally aim to provide research quality copies that sufficiently convey written or graphic information from the original document. There can be no guarantee that this will be possible or that the copies will be suitable for any other purpose due to the quality of the original documents. Higher quality copies, or copies suitable for other purposes, can be supplied if requested when placing an order. Customers are advised to discuss their requirements with staff from The National Archives to ensure the most suitable process can be recommended.

9. Image sizes
   a) Photocopies and digitally scanned images: The National Archives will normally produce copied images, which are approximately the same size as the originals. Photocopies will normally be printed onto sheets of paper of the appropriate size in the A2 to A3 range (within preservation guidelines and at the discretion of the operator) and charges will be based on the size of the paper. In the case of digitally scanned copies the images will normally be printed onto paper approximately the same size as the original and charges will be based on the size category into which the paper falls (A0 to A1, A1 to A2, A2 to A3 and A3 to A4). The National Archives can supply images of sheets of paper of different sizes if requested when placing an order.
   b) Prints from microfilm: images will normally be printed onto A3 size paper and may be larger or smaller than the original documents.
   c) Photographs or transparencies can be supplied in the specified dimensions. These will normally be required if a copy is for publication. The Image Library provides such images at the rates indicated in the appropriate leaflet.

Applications for permission to use copies for publication (including website publication), exhibition or broadcast or any other purpose must be addressed to the current owner(s) of the copyright in the original document. Anyone wishing to reproduce the material in transcript, translation or facsimile is responsible for identifying the current owner and for obtaining any permission required. An application must also be made to The National Archives' Image Library (address as above) for use of the copy.

3. Copies of non-public records and of published copyright works held at The National Archives
These are supplied subject to the customer completing a declaration form and observing the conditions it contains. Any infringement of these conditions may result in legal action. Any use other than for non-commercial research, private study or education, if approved by the copyright owner, may also require the permission of the Image Library.
The National Archives' copyright officer can provide further information on request

Supplying copies

4. Prices quoted on estimates are valid for three months.

5. Orders for copies placed in person at one of The National Archives' record copying counters are accepted on the following conditions:
    a) The National Archives may cancel the order if the copying process paid for, subsequently proves to be unsuitable. For example, if it may damage the document or fail to produce good copies. If an order is cancelled for such reasons The National Archives will offer to refund the payment and if feasible will provide an estimate for completing the work by an alternative copying process.
    b) The National Archives may cancel the order and refund payments if markers are found to be missing, documents are incorrectly marked up, or customers' instructions are unclear.
    c) If the customer's calculation of the number of copies required proves to be an underestimate, The National Archives will complete the order but will retain the copies until the balance of payment has been received. If it proves to be an overestimate, The National Archives will refund customers where the balance exceeds £3.00 (or £6.00 for overseas customers).

6. The National Archives will securely package copies supplied by post and will not accept liability in the event of damage or loss in transit. It can, however, arrange insurance cover at an additional cost if customers request it when they place their order. Such cover will usually be provided by a lower rate international recorded delivery unless otherwise requested by the customer.

7. Customers are advised to seek advice from their internet service provider before placing any order for electronic images to be delivered electronically. Customers should note that digital images, unless specified otherwise, are supplied in compressed jpeg format via a link to The National Archives' DocumentsOnline site or in tif format on CD-ROM. A0 sized images can only be requested on CD-ROM.

8. The National Archives will normally aim to provide research quality copies that sufficiently convey written or graphic information from the original document. There can be no guarantee that this will be possible or that the copies will be suitable for any other purpose due to the quality of the original documents. Higher quality copies, or copies suitable for other purposes, can be supplied if requested when placing an order. Customers are advised to discuss their requirements with staff from The National Archives to ensure the most suitable process can be recommended.

9. Image sizes
    a) Photocopies and digitally scanned images: The National Archives will normally produce copied images, which are approximately the same size as the originals. Photocopies will normally be printed onto sheets of paper of the appropriate size in the A2 to A3 range (within preservation guidelines and at the discretion of the operator) and charges will be based on the size of the paper. In the case of digitally scanned copies the images will normally be printed onto paper approximately the same size as the original and charges will be based on the size category into which the paper falls (A0 to A1, A1 to A2, A2 to A3 and A3 to A4). The National Archives can supply images of sheets of paper of different sizes if requested when placing an order.
    b) Prints from microfilm: images will normally be printed onto A3 size paper and may be larger or smaller than the original documents.
    c) Photographs or transparencies can be supplied in the specified dimensions. These will normally be required if a copy is for publication. The Image Library provides such images at the rates indicated in the appropriate leaflet.

Deemed acceptance

10. The National Archives will display these terms and conditions at all points of sale. Customers will be deemed to have accepted the terms and conditions in completing an order form, submitting a counter order or accepting documents by any means.

Letter from war torn Africa

Anne LaLonde, daughter of Fred and Barbara Shaw LaLonde of Sault Ste. Marie, and granddaughter of Malcolm Shaw of Amherstburg is a Peace Corps Volunteer in Chad Africa. The following letter of her experience came to her Aunt Virginia Fox and Uncle Bill Fox. Anne lived through a harrowing experience which bears repeating to her relatives and friends here. The letter from Yasunde, Cameroon follows:

Well by now you've probably all heard that I happened to be in N'Djamena just in time to live through their attempted coup d'etat. It was a real "blast". The only good thing about it is that I'll have plenty of stories for years to come! I was with a friend when the shooting broke out, so we went back to his house toute de suite, and we stayed there for 3 days as there was shooting going on in the immediate area. Luckily, we didn't ever see the fighting and never saw anyone get killed, although there were reports that hundreds had died. Finally, on the 3rd day (Wed.) the fighting stopped long enough so that the French and American Embassies could get their rationals out of the "war zone". Then from Wednesday to Sunday afternoon we stayed with people or at this big complex (PCV's, that is). On Sunday, the U.N., Embassy people and P.C. Volunteers were evacuated to Yasunde. They haven't evacuated all PCV's in the country, just those who were in N'Djamena. Apparently an armistice was signed yesterday, now it's a matter of time to see whether the government is going to get its act together or not. Our director thinks we'll be here for 2 weeks and then we'll be able to go back to our posts and work. I sure hope so!

Meanwhile Yaoundi is a beautiful modern city and we're all just sort of relaxing and recuperating, eating good food, etc. (I ate army C-rations for 4 days - yuk!) Cameroon is a nation that is developing - it has a lot going for it, quite unlike Chad which is regressing, or stagnating at best. You can't even compare the 2 Capitals. N'Djamena is mainly mud-brick houses, dirty streets and poor people. Yasunde is mainly stucco and cement houses relatively clean streets, covered sewers and the people seem to be better off. The women here are much more modern, they wear Western style dress, and boy, do they dress! Chad . . . well, the Islamic influence has a lot to do with the fact that women are still in a bad position and hiding behind veils. Even in the south where there are few Muslims the women work and dress the same as they did 100 years ago.

Well, hopefully things will get back to normal pretty soon and you can write to me once again in Pala.

Love,
Anne

He married Maggie Allen, daughter of the late William and Sarah (Warren) Allen, about thirty-five years ago and settled on the Warren farm where he died. They had four children, Mary Mrs. Kenneth Bondy of Colchester South; Norah, Mrs. Melville Sinasac, Anderdon; Allen lives in Amherstburg, and Norman at home. His aged mother makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Anson Pettypiece. Mr. Sunderland was not only a good farmer and business man, but was a useful man in the community. He served two years in the council of Malden, took an active interest in the establishment of Separate school No. 11, and served as its Secretary-Treasurer for about twenty-five years. He was held in very high esteem as was evidenced by the large number of people who called at the home to extend their condolences. The Sunderlands are an old family, coming to Amherstburg about seventy-five years ago from Mirimichi, New Brunswick. Originally there were George who was his father; William Sunderland; John, at the age of 94 is still living in Wyandotte; Robert lives in Detroit; Alexander is deceased. Besides there were three girls, Mrs. Captain Hugh McKenzie; Mrs. John Bailey and Mrs. John Bertrand, all of whom are deceased.

REPAIRING RIVER FRONT ROAD

Regarding the much discussed matter, and the allegation that the Malden authorities had been advised by the Department of Highway to resurface the river front road, The Echo interviewed Malden councillors personally and found that no letter or instructions of any kind have been received by them, either officially or otherwise, notwithstanding the letter with reference to this published in last week's Echo.

The latest vital statistics from the Dominion Bureau show that last year there were 74,287 marriages in Canada, 4,771 more than in 1927, and that living births increased while infant mortality was reduced. These facts are encouraging and hold great promise for the future. Natural growth is best and that is what Canada is getting.

ANDERSON—In Amherstburg, on Sunday, August 4th, Harvey, infant son of Mr. P. H. Anderson, aged 3 months and three weeks.

JACKSON—In Sandwich, on Friday, August 2nd, Belle, second daughter of Mrs. Eliza Jackson.

CRIMMINS—In Amherstburg, on Friday, August 2nd, John Patrick Crimmins, of consumption, aged 30 years and two months.

BOUSSY—At Ruthven, on Monday, July 29th, Amy, infant daughter of Mr. Alex. Boussy, aged 10 months.

—A number of the immediate relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Crimmins very happily reminded them of their crystal wedding Sunday evening by gathering at their home and spending a pleasant few hours with them. During the course of the evening, Mrs. Crimmins was presented with a pretty cut glass pitcher and sugar bowl and Mr. Crimmins with a silver framed shaving mirror, and other presents appropriate to the occasion, together with a complimentary address, read on behalf of the company by Mrs. Lambert Bertrand. Mr. Crimmins was so much surprised that he lost his power of speech, but Mrs. C., exercising the ladies' prerogative did the speaking for both of them and thanked the donors sincerely for their kindly gifts. The social hours flew all too soon, and at midnight the host and hostess bid all the guests repair to the diningroom, where the discussion of many good things occupied their attention quite as pleasurably as the rest of an evening long to be remembered.

Mr. Bailey moved to appoint Mr. Sparks, chief constable, as he had done the town good service. He should also have an assistant.

Messrs. Balfour and Grenier thought there was no need of a motion to appoint Mr. Sparks, as he held the office until another man was appointed.

Mr. Crimmins, seconded by Mr. Leggatt moved for one constable only.

Mr. Crimmins wanted drunkards and drunken houses suppressed. He said some drinking houses were open till 2 o'clock in the morning, and men were seen drunk on Sundays, in fact sometimes more so than on week days. He wanted sidewalks always free from snow and no hogs running about in the suburbs of the town. Also to have all public houses closed at a certain hour.

D Amherstburg–I am sorry to have to chronicle the death of John Crimmins, one of our oldest and most widely known citizens who expired on the 24th inst., after a long and painful illness. Originally a soldier in the British army, he settled with a number of other pensioners in this place many years ago, and has ever since been a favorite with most of our citizens. He was a native of Ireland, a devoted member of the Roman Catholic church, and big-hearted, whole-souled Christian. He served the town in the county council one or two terms and when he declined, on account of his advanced age, to stand for re-election, his place as deputy reeve was filled by Mr. Wilkinson. It will be many a long day before "Honest John

Ex-Warden Ed. Crimmins Dead

Prominent Figure In Municipal And Social Life

The Union Jack on the Town Hall was flying at half-mast last week as a tribute from the townspeople to the memory of Edward Crimmins, a prominent figure in the municipal, political and social life of the town, who passed away on Friday afternoon, March 3, at his home on Murray Street, following a lengthy illness. Mr Crimmins had been in ill health for some time but had only been confined to bed for the ten days preceding his demise. Solicitous enquiries regarding his health were received many times during his illness from his numerous friends in the town and county. Deceased was an ex-councillor, ex-deputy-reeve, ex-reeve and ex-warden. It was only since the beginning of the year that he retired from the municipal field although his indifferent health did not deter him from taking an interest in the affairs of the town.

Deceased was born in Amherstburg 55 years ago and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crimmins. After being educated in the Separate schools he began his business career as a butcher's boy. He became a butcher and started a business of his own. Since then he had been engaged in the grocery business as well and the past few years he has been local agent for Grinnell Bros. of Windsor. His genial characteristics helped to make as great a success of his business as his social life and there were few of the regular residents of this district who did not count him friend.

Besides his wife, formerly Loretta Bertrand, daughter of Mr. Alex. Bertrand, sr., surviving him are: two daughters, Loretta, Mrs. Walter Reaume, and Merciel, Mrs. Malcolm Shaw, both of Amherstburg, and six grandchildren, Crimmins, Norine, Virginia, Margaret and Barbara Shaw, and John Reaume.

Besides his wife, formerly Loretta Bertrand, daughter of Mr. Alex. Bertrand, sr., surviving him are: two daughters, Loretto, Mrs. Walter Reaume, and Merciel, Mrs. Malcolm Shaw, both of Amherstburg, and six grandchildren, Crimmins, Norine, Virginia, Margaret and Barbara Shaw, and John Reaume.

Mr. Crimmins was born with a flair for public life, as his father and grandfather were members of the Amherstburg council. He himself, had been in public life for over 20 years. His first election to the Council was in 1912. He served in 1917-18, was reeve in 1920-23 and Warden of Essex County in 1923. After a few years' holiday he again entered the Council as a councillor and deputy-reeve.

During his life in County Council he was a member of some of its most important committees and served on the Old Age Pension Board, being chairman of that body in 1932.

The funeral Monday morning, was one of the largest and most representative held in Amherstburg for some years. Old friends came from long distances to pay their last respects to one whom they had held in high respect. Several members of the Essex County Council, and Essex County officials were present including Warden Benoit; reeves, Robert Atkin, S. O. Hood, C. G. Baker, Thos. Plant, County Clerk Coyle; Treasurer Millen, Road Supt. Knister.

Schmidts musical requiem mass was sung by a male quartette composed of George West, A. J. Brown, E. Pineau and A. Reaume, in St. John the Baptist R.C. Church with Rev. Fr. Glavin officiating. After mass A. J. Burns sung a solo, "My Homeland," with Mrs. Anita Ong at the organ. Burial was made in the R. C. cemetery, the pallbearers being F. H. McCaffery, Capt. J. E. Mahon, P. J. Reaume, Wm. Renaud, F. Deslippe and F. Sinasac.

Captain Carl Shaw, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw and brother of Malcolm Shaw, is another Amherstburg Great Lakes Captain who has not only seen the growth of shipping on the Great Lakes, but has contributed to this growth. Captain Shaw holds the responsible position of Master of the "Richard J. Reiss." He has had 24 years' service on the lake boats and has been with the Reiss Coal Company of Cheboygan, Wisconsin, for the past l6 years. He and his wife, the former Elizabeth Graveline, daughter of the late Captain Felix Graveline and Mrs. Graveline, make their home in Detroit.

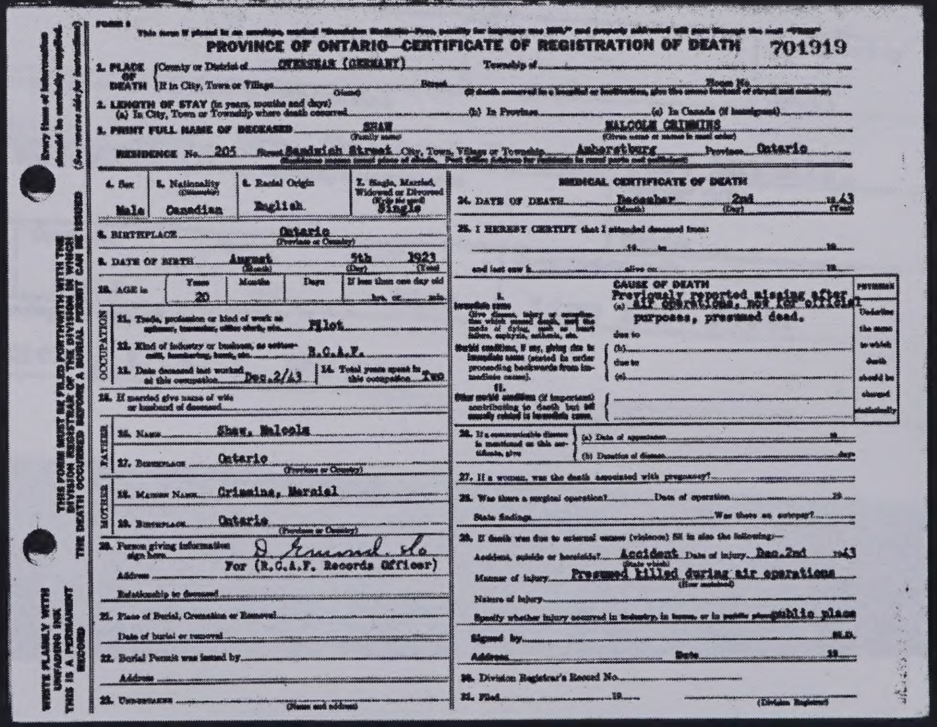
January 21, 1943

Some time ago I was talking to Malcolm Shaw about how the name Abigail was handed down in his family and about his great-grandfather John Jones who was rescued by Abigail Becker at Long Point when the ship Conductor floundered in a Lake Erie gale. Elsewhere in this edition is the thrilling story of the rescue as told by Mr. Phillips of Sarnia, who came to Amherstburg last Thanksgiving and had an interesting time chatting with Captain Dave and Captain Charlie Hackett. Mr. Shaw said that his great-grandfather was a Welshman (not an American as Mr. Phillips says) who as a boy served his apprenticeship before the mast. He was on the ship which moved Napoleon's body from St. Helena to France. Later he came to this country and settled in Amherstburg. Shortly after Mate John Jones was rescued by the brave silent Abigail Becker, a daughter was born to his wife here in Amherstburg. They called her Abigail. The name was handed down when Abigail Shaw of the next generation (now Mrs. Earl Lawler of Detroit) was born. Mr. Shaw quoted his great-grandfather as saying that to the day of her death Abigail Becker, when she stalked through the streets of Port Rowan, wore the medal which was the gift of Queen Victoria.



Every item of information should be carefully supplied. (See reverse side for instructions)

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

© Ruins at Robertstown

The first church in Robertstown was near Churchfield. Behind the present day church in Robertstown is the ruin of the previous Robertstown church and graveyard. The grounds are tidy and well kept and the church ruins have been partially rebuilt. Westropp states that Robert de Guer probably founded the church in the early part of the thirteenth century. Ardineer is a townland in Robertstown, and although there is no trace of a church in the present townland, it is believed that the original Robertstown church may have been situated here.

Today, there are three churches in use in the parish. The first church that you meet as you enter the parish is at Robertstown. This church is on the main Limerick-Foynes road and it was built in 1830.

Inside the church there is an ornate reredos behind the altar. The High Altar was erected in 1912 by Mary MacNamara O'Brien in memory of her husband Laurence C. O'Brien. Mrs Cornelius Mangan of Aughinish also erected Communion rails in 1912 in memory of her husband but they are no longer in the church. These details are given on plaques on the right and left hand sides of the church respectively.

To the left of the altar there is a statue to the Sacred Heart while on the right of the altar there is a statue to Mary. Various people donated the Stations of the Cross. The church windows are of a plain design.

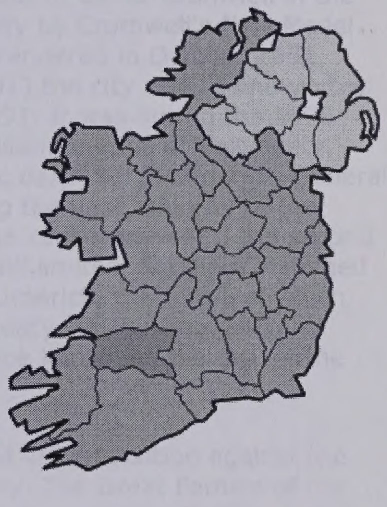
County Limerick, Ireland

Overview

County Limerick (Contae Luimnigh) is a county in the province of Munster, located in the mid-west of Ireland with County Clare to the north, County Cork to the south, County Kerry to the west and County Tipperary to the east. The River Shannon flows through the city of Limerick and into the Atlantic Ocean at the north of the county. Below the city, the waterway is known as the Shannon Estuary. Because the estuary is shallow, the county's most important port is several kilometres west of Limerick city, at Foynes.



Newcastle West is the most important county town outside of Limerick city. Other towns mainly lie along the Limerick - Tralee roads (N69, N20) and Limerick - Cork road (N21).

History

It is thought that man had established himself in the Lough Gur area of the county as early as 3000 BC, while megalithic remains found at Duntryleague date back further to 3500 BC. The arrival of the Celts around 400 BC brought about the division of the county into petty kingdoms or tuath.

Christianity came to Limerick in the 5th Century, and resulted in the establishment of important monasteries in Limerick, at Ardpatrick, Mungret and Kileedy. From this golden age in Ireland of learning and art (5th - 9th Centuries) comes one of Ireland's greatest artefacts, The Ardagh Chalice, a masterpiece of metalwork, which was found in a west Limerick fort in 1868.

The arrival of the Vikings in the 9th century brought about the establishment of the city on an island on the River Shannon in 922. The death of Donal Mór O'Brien, King of Munster in 1194 resulted in the invading Normans taking control of Limerick, and in 1210, the County of Limerick was formally established. Over time, the Normans became "more Irish than the Irish themselves" as the saying goes. The Tudors in England wanted to curb the power of these Gaelicised Norman Rulers and centralise all power in their hands, so they established colonies of English in the county. This caused the leading Limerick Normans, The Geraldines, to revolt against English Rule in 1569. This sparked a savage war in Munster known as the Desmond Rebellions, during which the province was laid to waste, and the confiscation of the vast estates of the Geraldines.

The county was to be further ravaged by war over the next century.

Limerick was not fought over for most of the Irish Confederate Wars, of 1641-53, being safely behind the front lines of the Catholic Confederate Ireland. However it became a battleground during the Cromwellian conquest of Ireland in 1649-53. The invasion of the forces of Oliver Cromwell in the 1650s included a twelve month siege of the city by Cromwell's New Model Army led by Henry Ireton. The city finally surrendered in October 1651. During the Jacobite-Williamite War (1689-1691) the city was to endure two further sieges, one in 1690 and another in 1691. It was during the 1690 siege that the infamous destruction of the Williamite guns at Ballyneety, near Pallasgreen was carried out by the heroic defender of Limerick, General Patrick Sarsfield The Catholic Irish, comprising the vast majority of the population, had eagerly supported the Jacobite cause, however, the second siege of Limerick resulted in a defeat to the Williamites. Sarsfield managed to force the Williamites to sign the Treaty of Limerick, the terms of which were satisfactory to the Irish. However the Treaty was subsequently dishonoured by the English and the city became known as the City of the Broken Treaty. See Also Sieges of Limerick.

The 18th and 19th centuries saw a long period of persecution against the Catholic majority, many of who lived in poverty. The Great Famine of the 1840s set in motion mass emigration and a huge decline in Irish as a spoken language in the county. This began to change around the beginning of the 20th century, as changes in law from the British Government enabled the farmers of the county to purchase lands they had previously only held as tenants, paying high rent to absentee landlords.

Limerick saw much fighting during the War of Independence of 1919 to 1921 particularly in the east of the county. The subsequent Irish Civil War saw bitter fighting between the newly established Irish Free State soldiers and IRA "Irregulars", especially in the city. However Limerick, and indeed all of Ireland has overcome the lows of the Civil War to become the prosperous place it is today.

Rathkeale Graveyards

© Rathkeale church and graveyard

There is a large graveyard beside the church in Rathkeale. The oldest headstone that we came across dated from 1877. This headstone is dedicated to Fr James O'Shea who was a former parish priest of Rathkeale from 1864 until his death. The headstone is written in Latin and the date is written in roman numerals.

© Jubilee Cross

In the centre of the graveyard in Rathkeale there is a large cross. This Jubilee cross commemorates the mission that was given by the Passionist father in October 1875. The inscription on the cross also mentions the fact that it was the 30th year of the reign of Pope Pius IX.

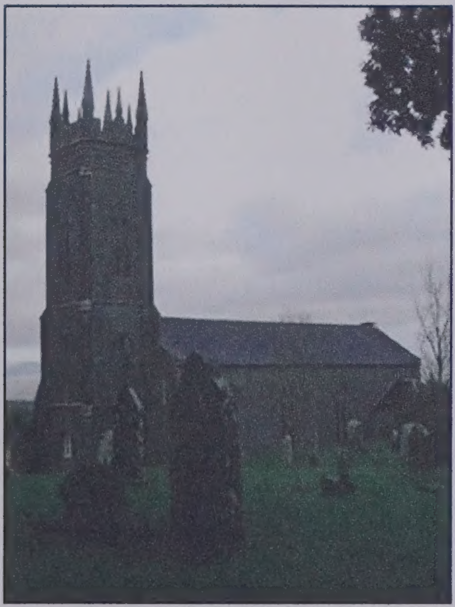
There were two others headstones of interest that we came across in Rathkeale. One headstone recalls the short life of Sean Finn, Brigadier Commandant who was killed at Ballyhahill on the 30th of March 1921 at the age of 22. There is a headstone that shows the resting-place of the late Dean Costello, who was parish priest in Rathkeale from 1964 until his death in 1989.

© New Graveyard in Rathkeale

On the road to Cappagh, there is a new graveyard that has been opened in the last few years. It is noted for the elaborate headstones erected by the travelling community. There was also a graveyard in Kilcolman still in use in 1840. Westropp mentions a burial place in the townland of Bealduvroga.

Both Catholics and Protestants are buried in the graveyard of the Anglican Church.

The oldest Catholic headstone that we found was dated from 1759 and was erected by John Clancy in memory of his father Richard Clancy, who died aged 40 on the 4th of August of that year.



© Anglican Church and graveyard

There is a graveyard around the church in Rathnasser. The graveyard, like the church, is in a state of disrepair and is overgrown. However, there are still a number of headstones standing in the graveyard. The oldest headstone that we could read was from 1825 and it was to the memory of Joseph Ginnan who died on September 18 of that year aged 20.

Fort Malden

Fort Malden National Historic Park at Amherstburg, Ontario, forms an interesting link with early events in Canadian history. Following the surrender of Detroit by British forces in 1796, Fort Malden was constructed on the banks of the Detroit River between 1797 and 1799 by the Royal Canadian Volunteers, and for the next 40 years was one of the principal frontier military posts in Upper Canada.

During the war of 1812-14 Fort Malden played a conspicuous part, and was the rallying point for the British forces that captured Detroit in 1812. Following the Battle of Lake Erie, in 1813, Fort Malden was dismantled and vacated by the British. Occupied by an invading force from the United States, it was held until 1815 when it was evacuated under the provisions of the Treaty of Ghent. During the border raids of 1837-38, Fort Malden again became an important military post, and for a time was garrisoned by a considerable force.

The site, including part of the remaining earthworks, was acquired by the Canadian Government in 1937, and was established as a national historic park in 1941. It covers an area of five acres. Important events connected with the site have been commemorated, and the museum buildings on the park grounds house a large number of interesting exhibits relating to the history of the region. Amherstburg is situated on Highway No. 18, about 16 miles from Windsor.

FOREWORD

The National Parks of Canada are areas of natural beauty and special interest that have been "dedicated to the people of Canada for their benefit, education, and enjoyment". Established primarily for the preservation of the unspoiled natural landscape and for the protection of the native wildlife, they are to be "maintained and made use of so as to leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations".

The discovery of hot mineral springs, bubbling from the slopes of Sulphur Mountain, by construction workers exploring the route for Canada's first transcontinental railway, led to the establishment of Canada's first national park. From this small area of ten square miles at Banff, Alberta, set apart in 1885, the national parks system has been extended until it embraces 40 separate areas totalling more than 29,000 square miles.

Although a few parks have been devoted chiefly to the conservation of certain species of big game animals once threatened with extinction, some contain sites memorable in the early history of Canada. Others have been developed so that park visitors may more conveniently view the magnificent scenery and relax in the enjoyment of the inspirational and peaceful environment. Dear Mrs Read.

Your letter dated October 4th was sent to me by Fr. John Irwin C.C. Rathkeale. It came here while I was on holidays – hence the delay. I also had a letter looking for the same information from Fr. Cremins of Rockwell College, so I presume it was for you he wanted it.

The following is the only information I could find after a long search in the books.

1 Mary Crimmin born 9th October 1836 of Edmond Crimmin and Margaret Shanahan

2 Mary Crimmin born 25th June 1837 of John Crimmin + Mary Barrett.

3 Patrick Crimmin born 26th Febuary 1840
of John Crimmins & Bridget O'Shaughnessy

This is all I could find, and I hope it will be of some help.

Yours sincerely
Gerard Enright P.P.

Rev. John Irwin, C.C.
Rathkeale
Co. Limerick
Ireland

Dear Rev. Irwin,

I have been researching my family for a number of years and find that I have Irish lineage.

John Crimmins lists his birthplace as Robertstown, Co. Limerick. He was born between 1798 and 1806 and probably had a brother Edmond born near that same time.

Could your parish records be checked for his birth, parantage and brothers or sisters?

If Robertstown (or what would have been Robertstown at that time) is not in your parish area, could you please direct me to the proper parish?

As added information; an Edmond Crimmins married Margaret Shanessy about 1833-35, although I don't know if it was at the same parish as the births were recorded.

Any assistance will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Mrs. David J. Read

25th April 1978.

Dear Mrs Read,

Mrs Diana Birch has passed me your letter to her dated 6 March as she is rather busy at present. I should be very pleased to do some research for you.

I would suggest that the best way to tackle the research would be:-

Civil Registration births for Ellen Crimmins, 1837. Registration only began in July 1837 so there is only a 50% chance of finding an entry.

Civil Registration deaths for Margaret Crimmins 1837-52. All Crimmins entries in England and Wales in this period to be noted to determine where this name is found. As the name is comparatively uncommon entries are not likely to be numerous.

Civil Registration births in England and Wales, 1851, for John Edmond Crimmins. Ireland did not have registration until 1864. His birthplace would help locating his family in the 1851 census and Edmond Crimmins and his family might be found living nearby.

If this fails inspecting 95th Foot pension records to locate residence of John Crimmins in 1851.

I could do the above for £12. Should we have luck early on I would follow on with the logical next step rather than continuing as above.

I will look forward to hearing from you further.

Yours sincerely,

A.J.

Dear Mr. McMillan,

I will be happy to have you do the research for me.

Your outline sounds fine to me, with one exception:

In Nov. of 1976, I had a Civil Registration check for a birth for Ellen Crimmins and none was found.

I am sorry I neglected to mention this fact in my inquiry letter.

Enclosed is an International check for $23.00 (a slight excess of 12 lbs.) for your fee as quoted.

Here's hoping for a great success!

Sincerely,

Mrs. David J. Read

I acknowledge receipt of your letter dated October 2, 1976, and received in this office on November 4th, 1976.

A search of the Departmental Filing Records reveals no registration for the matter referred to in your correspondence.

Dear Mrs. Read:

Your letters of 10 January addressed to the Citizenship Registration Branch have been referred to Public Archives. In reply, I regret to inform you that extensive searches both in Canada and Great Britain have failed to locate comprehensive nominal lists of immigrants arriving in Canada prior to 1865. Only a few scattered lists relating mainly to subsidized British emigration schemes, 1817-1831, have been found.

Some information might be obtained from the 1851 (reel C-953), 1861 (reel C-1020) and 1871 (reel C-601) census returns of Malden Township and Amherstburg. Unfortunately, the large number of requests received for reference service makes it impossible for to undertake census searches. However, microfilm copies of census records in our custody may be borrowed for your use by any institution which possesses a microfilm reader and participates in the interlibrary loan arrangement. Requests for loans must be submitted by the borrowing institution on authorized forms and should specify the census year and the town or township required and the reel numbers if possible.

Should you wish to employ someone to make a search for you I am enclosing a list of persons who are willing to perform research assignments for a fee.

The undernoted institution might be able to provide some assistance.

Dear Sir;

I have been researching two of my families in Canada.

There names are: William George Hunt b. 22 Nov. 1824
John Crimmins b. b. 1798
Edmond Crimmins b. ca 1800
Ellen Crimmins b. 1837

I find that these families were in Malden Twp./Amherstburg area or Essex Co.

Since these parts of the 1851 Census are missing, have you compiled any other lists to cover the people of this area?

I am trying to ascertain whether Ellen is the daughter of John or Edmond Crimmins and where the Crimmins came from in England. Also I am trying to find more about William George Hunt and where he came from.

Please inform me of any fee.

Sincerely,

Mrs. David J. Read

Dear Sir;

I am tracing my genealogy and need more information on the following people:

John Crimmins b. 1798, Ireland
Mary Donovan Crimmins b. ca 1813
    Margaret b. 1845, England
    Patrick b. 1847, Albion, England
    Elizabeth b. 1848, England
    Edmond John b. 1851, England

Edmond Crimmins b. ca 1800
Margaret Shanessy Crimmins b. ca 1800

Ellen Crimmins b. 1837, England

John Crimmins immigrated to Canada in 1851 as a Pensioner. He settled inthe Malden Twp./Amherstburg, Essex Co. area, Ellen Crimmins b. 1837, is my great-great-Grandmother. She lists Edmond Crimmins and Margaret Shanessy as her parents, but she lived with and near John Crimmins.

So I must establish her real relationship to John Crimmins before I can further my research.

Please inform me if there is any information available on the immigration and the fees for any search.

Dear Madam

With reference to your letter of 6th June passed here by the Ministry of Defence requesting information on John Crimmons

RECORDS OF SERVICE OF MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES

Records of service preserved in the Public Record Office include those of the British Army before 1900 and those of members of the Royal Navy before about 1910; also those of other ranks (but not officers) of the Royal Marines before 1901 and of members of the Royal Irish Constabulary. They may be inspected without charge by the holders of Readers' Tickets. Application forms for 5 yearly Readers' Tickets and copies of Information for Readers will be sent on request.

For persons unable to make personal search the Public Record Office can provide the names and addresses of two independent Record Agents who might be prepared to undertake a search. The Public Record Office accepts no responsibility for arrangements made between such agents and their clients, nor can it supply information as to the scales of charges of such agents or offer any opinion of the probable cost of any particular search undertaken by them.

Alternatively, the Public Record Office is prepared, for a fee of £10 per search (plus 25p P+P) to search for the basic record of service of a particular person or for the record providing a specific piece of information about him and, if this is successful, to supply a copy of the record or particulars of the information therein contained. If officially certified copies are required an extra charge will be incurred, estimates for which will be supplied on request.

There is no general index to service records and without a certain amount of preliminary information search is not feasible. In general it is necessary to know the name (and number if possible), service, rank, ship or regiment and dates of service. Where medals are held, this information will be found engraved on the rim. Records of service have been kept in various ways in different services and at different times; for certain periods records of some kinds of service have not survived, while for others, particularly before the nineteenth century, the records of service do not give much information of a personal nature. There can, therefore, be no guarantee that the record of service of any particular person can be traced or that, if it is traced, it will necessarily be complete or supply the particular information sought. The Public Record Office reserves the right to decline to make a search. When a search has been made, the fee will be retained whether or not any positive result has been obtained.

Applications for searches should be made on the attached form. Payments should be made in sterling, and for the exact sum specified, by postal order, or by cheque drawn on an English account or by International Money Order payable to the Public Record Office. Up to three applications may be made on any one form; further forms will be sent on request. There may be a delay of some weeks before searches can be undertaken and the results notified to the enquirer.

Enquiries relating to later records of service of members of the British Army should be directed to the Ministry of Defence, Army Records Centre, Bourne Avenue, Hayes, Middlesex; those relating to later records of service of members of the Royal Navy to the Ministry of Defence (Navy), Old Admiralty Building, Whitehall, London, S.W.1.; those relating to the records of service of officers of the Royal Marines to the Commandant General, Royal Marines, Old Admiralty Building, Whitehall, London, S.W.1. Later records of service of other ranks of the Royal Marines are held by D.R.O.R.M., H.M.S. Centurion, Grange Road, Gosport, Hants.

Records of service of European members of the armed forces of the Honourable East India Company and of the Indian Government prior to independence are preserved in the India Office Records, Orbit House, 197 Blackfriars Rd, London S.E.1.

Records of members of the United Empire Loyalists are preserved in the Public Archives of Canada, Ottawa; certain records of Hessian troops in the British Army are preserved at the Staatsarchiv, Marburg/Lahn, Germany.

Your remittance of   is being returned.

Yours faithfully

K. Twyman-Musgrove (MRS)

Dear Mr. Botsford,

A number of years ago I had the pleasure of meeting you and discussing the Hunt genealogy,

I am now trying to establish the lineage of Ellen Crimmins who married William George Hunt on 25 Jan. 1853 at St. John the Baptist. She stated that her parents were Edmond Crimmins and Margaret Shanessy. It also stated that Margaret was deceased at the time of this marriage.

I have checked the records at St. John the Baptist, looked at the printed volumnes of Christ Church records, census, deeds, wills, atlas' and any book about Amherstburg.

But in all these things, I have not found any mention of an Edmond Crimmins. I do find John Crimmins and Mary Donovan's children and many of the records pertaining to them, leading down to Mrs. Loretta Reaume.

I do know that there must be some connection between John Crimmins and his family and the Ellen Crimmins that I am looking for. I find that one of John's children lived with Ellen and William Hunt and several of John's children were sponsors for the baptism's of Ellen and William G. Hunt's children.

I am wondering if your records could be checked for any further information about John Crimmins or Ellen Crimmins Hunt.

Enclosed is a sheet with the information that I have collected.

Any help you may be able to gvie me will be greatly appreciated. Please inform me if you would like a fee.

Sincerely,

Helen Hunt Read

Dear Mrs. Read:

We have checked various early Essex county directories, atlases and local history scrapbooks and pamphlets. There seems to be very little information concerning the Hunt and Crimmins families of Amherstburg - Malden Township.

The 1885 "Farmers' and Business Directory of Elgin, Essex and Kent Counties" lists an Arthur, a Frank and a Joseph Hunt, all residing on Concession 3, Lot 27, Malden Township. In the 1899 edition, a William H.and an F. A. Hunt are listed at the same address, while the 1909 directory mentions Collier, F. A., and George Hunt on Lot 27, 3rd Concession. In none of the above cases, does the directory mention any wives at that address, so our information is quite incomplete.

An Essex and Kent County Atlas for 1866-67 lists a John Crimmins, on Concession 6, Lot 75, Malden Township, but no other names you have indicated an interest in. Robert W. Mackay's "Canada Directory" for 1851 mentiones a James Hunt, mill owner, as residing in Amherstburg. They do not have a Malden Township section, however.

I hope that these few references will be of some value, however incomplete. Perhaps you might also contact Mr. Harry Bosveld, curator of the Fort Malden Historical Museum in Amherstburg, for further advice.

Please inform me of any fees.

I would like photocopies if any information is found.

Dear Mrs Read.

Your letter of Aug 30th rec'd and I must say that this is quite a coincidence - because my name before marrying was Loretta L. Crimmins - one daughter of John Edmond Louis Crimmins: the now only living Crimmins of this family in these parts.

I have been in charge of the Amherstburg Library for many years, hence the reason for my getting your letter -

I cannot trace any families - of years ago - or now in this area - of the Lovet name.

That is a name I do not know.

Just at present I am in the house (away from work) have been ill = "hence this scribble"

If I can help you further, please let me know - Some years ago I had our ancestors look into by the curate of our town museum - if I can find it when I'm better I will send it to you.

My grand father came to Canada as a young man from Ireland. he left only one son my Dad and my father had only two daughters. so I am sure I am the only one left.

My Sister who died two years ago, had a son. named Crimmins Shaw. he was a Flying Officer in the R.C.A.F. He was lost in 1943.

Hoping to hear from you

Dear Mrs Read -

Having been away for some time I just got your letter on my return - I am truly sorry that I cannot help you too much.

I am sending to you - our family tree - please return to me after you have studied it -

My sister and myself had not a great interest in our family history on the Crimmins side of the family There were so few of us -

The only ones we really knew was our Dad = John Edward or Edmond Louis Crimmins and his Aunt - (Nellie) Ellen Crimmins who married D Grouline -

She died about fifty yrs ago -

We never knew our grandfather

Right now - I am not sure but I believe his name was Edmond -

My Grandmother was left a widow with one son - (my Dad) at the age of 18 - and she always told us of the handsome man - (her Eddie) our grandad

My sister and myself knew more of the Bertrand history - because of the families born and raised here

Many of these names are familiar (sounding) - only. (on the paper you sent me)

I wish I could help you some -

As you noticed in the cemetery all the Crimmins died very young -

Possibly that is why we did not hear about them; and then my Grandmother being very young. married again (Bertrand) at 21 yrs of age.

My mother's family name was Bertrand also

So we had Bertrand's on both sides of the family:

A very old name in this district

Under other circumstance (my husband being dead only 6 months) I would have enjoyed what I did see of Europe -

If he had of been with me - as we had sort of planned - it would have been wonderful.

We have friends, from Canada - living in Brussel's Belgium - that is where we stayed and traveled from there to other countries -

I am sorry I was not here when you came; but you might possibly come again -

I have friends - living in Toledo I haven't seen in years.

Name of Signa Lacey - (Grover) lives at 1810 Bigelow - 43613

I am glad to hear from - hoping to do so again

Sincerely
Louise Reaume

I am 68 years old - and have arthritis very badly in my hands. hence this terrible scribble.

Sorry

Dear Mrs. Read;

I am enclosing a notice of our library hours for you when you come to Amherstburg and as I will be on holidays at the time one of our staff will be only too glad to be of help to you in your search.

The funny thing about this is that my husband might be one of your long lost relatives....His father was a Simon Bertrand and the half brother of Edward Crimmins. Is'nt it strange? As I will not be able to see you please look up the Pouget family also. I also think that the Lovet family really is the Lovell family. Probably somewhere along the line someone spelled it wrong.

So good luck in your search while you are in Amherstburg and please be sure to go to our local newspaper, The Amherstburg Echo, They keep a file of old newspaper clippings and Mr. John Marsh, the editor will be glad to let you see them.

I will be back on the 11th of August from a short trip but will not be at work till the 19th. If I can be of any help call me at 736-4878 .

Respectfully Yours,

Mrs. David Read,

5711 Vail Ave.

Toledo, Ohio,

Dear Mrs. Read,

I am sorry to have taken so long to write this letter and I am in no position to help you with this information. I am giving you the name of Mrs. Walter Reaume, Sandwich Street, Amherstburg. She is a daughter of Ed. Crimmins and has all the available information.

She will be best able to tell you birthdates and what have you. I am not able to tell you things like that becaude I am ohly an In-Law. I only know that Edward Crimmins and Simon Bertrand were half-brothers. Mrs. Crimmins was left a widow at an early age and married a Bertrand who already had six children then they had children so you see it would take a historian to fill you in on who did what? When?...

Please write Mrs. Reaume and then you will be able to ferret out all the mixed up relations...

Good luck in your search

Temple Ordinance Indexes

Personal searches or searches by accredited genealogists of these files are recommended.

Computer File Index—CFI

The CFI is an index to LDS baptisms, endowments, and sealings performed for deceased persons since 1969; temple work done under the Controlled Extraction Program; and an ever-increasing number of entries for ordinance work completed prior to 1969.

The CFI is available for personal searching at branch genealogical libraries and the main library.

Temple Index Bureau—TIB

The TIB is an index of individual LDS Temple endowments performed for living and deceased persons up to 1970, and also includes a few ordinances completed after 1970.

Family Group Records Archives—FGRA Main Section

The FGRA is an index to LDS temple ordinances (baptisms, endowments, and sealings) submitted for deceased persons from 1942 to 1970 arranged by family group.

The FGRA is available for personal searching at the main library.

Request for Searches

The main purpose of this service is to provide information from three major temple ordinance files. Not all temple ordinance information can be found in these three indexes. Occasionally, a search of microfilmed temple ordinance records at the main library in person or through an accredited genealogist may be necessary.

The Genealogical Department has not attempted to verify the correctness of the information submitted by its patrons.

Dear Mrs. Reaume,

Thank you for the information you sent to me. I made a copy of the pink sheet for my file.

The names I have are beginning to fall in place, but I still need the name of your mother and your grandmother.

If you could send me their whole maiden names and even an approximate birth and/or death date, I believe I can put most of the people in their proper place.

I am enclosing a quarter to pay for some of the postage you have used.

Mrs. Bertrand answered my letter, but she referred me to you stating that you would have all the information.

Thank you again for the help you have given me, and I would appreciate these two names immensely.

Sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Reaume,

Some time back I wrote to you (at the library) inquiring on the Hunt-Crimmins and Hunt-Lovet families.

Early in August I wivisted Amherstburg. I met Mr. McGee, his daughter Liz Ridsdale and Mr. Botsford.

I spend some time at St. John the Baptist Church going over records. I covered the period from 1847 to 1877. I also went to the cemetaries.

Between the two places I found some strange things and am again returning to you for assistance.

William George Hunt and Ellen Crimmins had at least 10 children. There were a total of 19 sponsors at baptism. 15 times the Crimmins surname appears. Since William George Hunt and Ellen Crimmins children were born over a period of 22 years, I believe some of the later sponsors were children of the earlier sponsors. And of course, some people stood for more than one baptism.

But doesn't this seem odd? In a period of 80 years all these families disappeared. It really doesn't sound impossible that by deaths, daughters and re-marriages the name has pretty well died out, but you and Mrs. Bertrand are the only ones who have even heard of it. (Mr. Botsford, too)

I will try to clearly list the information that I have and if you would see if any of it seems familiar to you I would appreciate it immensely.

It will probably be some time before I can return to Amherstburg. I believe that some ofthe answers lie in the church records before 1847, or else they lived in an adjoining neighborhood. They must have been Catholic, because I am quite sure that a sponsor had to be of the same faith.

Any itme that you may be able to clear, would be most helpful.

When I inquired as to the library hours, Mrs. Bertrand said that her husbands father (Simon Bertrand) was a half brother to Edward Crimmins. I did not get to talk to her, but I am planning writing to her.

I hope your vacation was as enjoyable as ours.

Sincerely,

Helen Read

Dear Mrs. Read:

We are pleased to learn of your interest in the records and services of the Genealogical Department.

The dioceses wholly or partially continued in the county of Limerick prior to 1858 were: Limerick, Cashel, Emly, Killahloe.

Most of the pre - 1858 wills were burned in 1922; however, the indexes and many copies still exist. Considering the great distance you live from our nearest branch library we undertook a search the above mentioned indexes and the index of the Prerogative court of Armagh, as this court had authority over all diocesen courts. On the chance a will was made for Edmond, a search of the possible survival of will would be worth taking. However, Edmond did not leave one. We found in the index of the Prerogative court of Armagh Maurice Cremmin, 16 May 1838 a farmer in Ballyegnd, Limerick, and in the dioceses of Limerick James Cremmin in 1828.

As we cannot do detailed research, you may wish to enlist the help of a professional genealogist.

Here is a list of genealogists accredited by the Genealogical Department. If you would like their help, you will have to write or phone them personally explaining your research needs.

We are sorry this information could not be more helpful, but we wish you success in your research.

Sincerely,

GENEALOGICAL DEPARTMENT

Dear Rev. Kirby,

I have been researching my family for a number of years and find that I have ancestors from "Limerick".

Edmund Crimmins married Margaret Shanessy and they had at least one daughter, Ellen. Edmund and Margaret both died by 1851. Ellen was born in 1837.

Edmund had at least one brother, John, and they were born late 1700's or early 1800's.

Could your Parish records be checked for the births, marriage and deaths of the above people and any others that appear to be related?

I have written to Shanangolden Parish and they didn not find this family.

Any assistance you can provide will be greatly appreciated.

(O) CREMIN

Ó Cruimín, Cremin in English, is exclusively a west Munster surname ; almost all the families so called are resident in Counties Kerry and Cork or have recently migrated therefrom, though in the 1659 census they were more numerous in the Co. Limerick barony of Connelloe, which adjoins these two counties. The tradition is that they are a branch of the MacCarthys, and in that connexion it is interesting to note that in the Bantry district Matheson found the name Cremin interchangeable with MacCarthy.

In various sixteenth century records such as the Fiants and the "Composition Book of Connacht" the name MacCremon, MacKremin etc. often appears in Co. Galway. This, however, must not be confused with Cremin of Munster, being in fact a clerk's misspelling of MacRedmond, one of the many aliases of the Burkes of Connacht, and still extant.

(Mac) CRILLY, CROLLY.

Though the prefix Mac is now obsolete in this case the records for the counties comprised in the ancient territory of Oriel show that Crilly is definitely a Mac name. Several variant forms of the surname, as well as the place-name Ballymacreely, occur in the sixteenth century Fiants for Monaghan and south Down ; MacCrolly, MacCroley and Crolly are among the principal Irish names in Co. Louth in the 1659 census ; MagCrolys are found in the Co. Armagh Hearth Money Rolls of 1664 ; two Crellys and a MacCrolly, priests located in different parts of Oriel, are prominent in the Rinuccini correspondence (1653-1660) ; MacCrylly appears in the Farney (Co. Monaghan) rentroll of 1695. Crelly and Creely without prefix appear among the attainted Jacobites of Co. Down about the same date. Nevertheless the prefix O was sometimes used with this name. Friar O'Mellan, writing in 1647 in Irish, gives O Crilii as the name of a Maghera priest, and it occurs with O as well as Mac in the Armagh Hearth Money Rolls. Reeves calls the erenaghs of Tamlaght (Co. Derry) O'Crilly not MacCrilly and the modern name of the parish formerly called Drumgarvan is Tamlaght O'Crilly. There was, too, a James O'Crilly in one of the O'Neill regiments of James II's army. By some authorities the erenagh family of Tamlaght is considered to be a branch of the MacDermots of Moylurg.

Abbot Patrick Crelly acted for Owen Roe O'Neill in negotiations with London on behalf of the Ulster Catholics. Dr. William Crolly (1780-1849) was Bishop of Down and Connor from 1825 to 1835 and Archbishop of Armagh until his death: he was a supporter of the establishment of national schools and, within certain limits,

Dear Mrs. Read,

I received your letter of October 4th on 11th October.

My efforts to get information about your ancestors have not been very successful. Robertstown is not given in the Irish Catholic Directory or in the Postal Directory, so I presumed it was a townsland, not town or village (with a phone). County Limerick takes in a large part of the diocese of Cashel & Emly (where we are situated) and, of course, of the diocese of Limerick. An enquiry from the diocesan secretary of Cashel & Emly brought the reply that I should try the Parish Priest of Foynes (in the diocese of Limerick). Foynes is part of another parish, or rather there are two places making up the one parish. I wrote to the P.P. of Foynes, who sent my letter to the P.P. of Shanagolden. I enclose his reply. The information is rather meagre. Since the people you mention are over 150 years dead, the only way to gather anything about them them would be to ask the older folk of the district. Perhaps you might visit the place sometime (but in these cases I know that it is well to be prepared for family skeletons!)

A paperback, The Surnames of Ireland, by Edward MacLysaght (published by the Irish University of Ireland) gives a little information about the Cremins (Cremin &c) family. It says :-

> (O) Cremin, Cremeen Ó Cruimin (crom,bent). Traditionally a branch of the MacCarthys. Seldom found outside west Munster.

On a map showing the position of families before the upheavals of the 17th century (the plantations), the O Cremin tribe is shown in an area near Bantry, Co. Cork. I had heart that they (or we) were a sub-tribe of the MacCarthys.

The book I referred to is £1-50 ($2.40). I have recently seen a book by the same author (Edward MacLysaght) entitled Irish Families, their names, Arms and Origins. It gives many coats of arms in colour. The cost is £5.00. This might have more general information (published 1972).

The name Cremins (&c) is not very common. It is found in the area of Newcastlewest and in Kerry. I believe it is an old name.

I hope this information, though small, will be interesting to you.

With all good wishes,

Yours sincerely,

P. Cremins, CSSp.

Dear Rev. Cremins,'

As I was checking the Irish Catholic Directory 1977, for the possible parishes of my ancestors, I came across your name.

I couldn't resist the far-out possibility that you might also have an interest in history or genealogy.

I have been trying to find more information on John Crimmins b. 1798-1806 in Robertstown, Co. Limerick; Edmond Crimmins and wife Margaret Shanessy and Ellen Crimmins b. about 1837 in either England or Ireland.

Margaret and Edmond Crimmins were suppose to be Ellen's parents, but she lived near John Crimmins in Canada.

I have found the family name spelled in many ways, including Cremins as you do. Most times in later years in Canada, it was spelled Crimmins. Patrick is a family name that has been in several generations that I have located.

I have not found that Crimmins is a common name, but perhaps you could inform me if it is a common name in Ireland or a very old name.

Any correspondance you might give will be appreciated.

Sincerely,

Mrs. David J. Read

O'MULLANE OF BRITTAS TOWNLAND, PARISH OF KILSHANNIG, BARONY OF DU HALLOW, CO. CORK

(Ref.:Basil O'Connell,The Irish Genealogist, Vol.2 No.10; John T. Collins, J.Cork Hist. & Arch. Soc. V.54,1949,Welpy,Soc.of Geneal. Ac.13195,9750;Sadleir's,"Obits"; Betham Abstr. 317; Cork Mercantile Chron. Feb 21, 1817; Burke, Gen. Armory 1878)

"O'MULLANE: A sept of Connacht deriving their name from Mullan of the race of Conconnor and McGerahty, Argent: a dexter hand couped at the wrist in fess gules:holding a dagger in pale ppr.,between 3 crescents of the 2nd. Crest:Out of a crescent gules a dagger erect ppr."

"By the Will of 1683, James, son of William Lombard, confirmed to John O'Mullane and his heirs for ever the lands of Brittas according to a lease made before Mr. William Curtaine of Dromaneen, granting same of 1,000 years at the yearly rent of 17 lbs and he desired his own Heirs 'to be always kind and obliging to that family'." Later Collins shows us that these lands were held for a term of 1,600 years from 24.6.1683(the date of Will of James Lombard, of Gortnolin).

No.1233. Cloyne Will of DERMOT O'MULLANE of BRITTAS. Sgd. 8.9.1705. Prvd.12.11. 1706. His eldest son JOHN O'Mullane is Executor with Cornelius O'Callaghan of Dromaneen. Dermot's other sons are Andrew, James and Darby. The Parish Priest was Owen Connell. Dermot's uncle was William Curtaine (presumably he of the Lease.) His brother, Connor(Cornelius) O'Mullane. Witnesses:Corn.Callaghan, Terence Callaghan, Maghlin Girvan. An inventory was enclosed sgd. by William Fowke and Teige Moynihan dated 10.2.1706.

Will of JOHN O'MULLANE(eldest son & executor of Dermot O'Mullane,d.1706)sgd. 3.8.1710,prvd.18.4.1711. He mentions his wife Rose,als. Hennesy, and her father George Hennesy, and brother James Hennesy.(These Hennesys are relatively well documented. Rose H.m.John O'M. 1709. George was the son of James H. by Helen Nagle;(1) James,brother of Rose,m. Catherine Barrett c.1718 and not,as misprint in Burke,1758. They are the ancestors of the Hennesy of Ballymacmoy & Cognac families and the Windlesham Peerage and the present Earl Cadogan,Sir Austin Earl, the Coxons,Berington, Neville of Sloley, etc., etc.) The Will mentions a child to be born, to his wife,Rose. It names his brothers(already named in the 1705 Will). Also cousin Cornelius Callaghan. The witnesses:Corn.Callaghan,Ja.Hennesy,David Curtin and Dennis Downing. The document was endorsed"This,the last Will and Testament of John O'Mullane left in the hand and custody of Mr. Cornelius Callaghan of Dromynine, this 3 day of April(sic)1710." The Cornelius Callaghan appears to be Cornelius O'Callaghan,M.P. for Fethard and grandfather to the 1st Lord Lismore. The child to be born was JOHN O'MULLANE OF BRITTAS, born 1710, d.1766, grandfather of the Liberator(Daniel O'Connell

Of John's brother ANDREW O'Mullan(2)weknow the following facts. He is named in the Will of his father, 1705, and that of his brother 1710. In 1727 he inherited the Estate of his brother James. In 1727 he married Ellen O'Bryen(possibly of the house of Kilcor). Andrew signed a Deed on 14.10.1755 granting a dowry of 200 lbs to Ellen Fitton who was then to be married to Melchoir Lavallan, of Cork. The Deed is witnessed by Gertrude Fitton who with Andrew signed herself as of Brook Lodge. It is reasonable to suppose that Andrew was the guardian and,maybe,a close relation of the Fittons. Elizabeth Fitton married 1724 Athenaseus Nagle,father of Nicholas Nagle referred to later. The intended Lavallan-Fitton marriage took place and a child was born. He was baptised John Philip Lavallin on 24.10.1756 in Cork. The God Parents are shown "Johannes OMullane and Dna. Ellen O'Mullane(etiam Philipus Lavallin, Armiger, and Dna.Eliz.Vowells)." It should be noted that Sara, daughter and co-heir of Philip Lavallin married July,1771,Henry Puxley and was the ancestress of Puxleys, Wallers, O'Brien Studdert and White of Glengarriffe Castle.Andrew's Will is abstracted.

ANDREW O'MULLANE, of Coolowen, sgd. 10.11.1759.Prvd.4.2.1760. To be buried with his ancestors at Kilshannig:wife Ellen. Children: Catherine,Ellen,John. Cousin Andrew O'Mullane and his children,James,Jeremy,Mary. To Margaret O'M.100 lbs at marriage if with consent of Testator's wife and of Laurence Donegan,Margaret's uncle. Niece Ellinor O'Mahony. Overseer:Wife. Executor John O'Mullane. Witness: Denis Sarsfield.

The Will is of Great interest for we find in Sadleir's"Obits."perserved in Dublin Castle, an entry "O'Mullane,Andrew,of Brook Lodge,Co.Cork,left a fortune of 12,000 lb to his nephew,John O'Mullane of Whitechurch. December,1759."Which is understandable as he would have been guardian during John's minority,1711-1732.

To show the general status of the family it should be remarked that the Laurence Donegan referred to is none other than the Rt.Rev.Dr.Donegan,D.Theo.of France, who is called brother in the Will of Darby O'Mullane,1741. He was nephew,and except for bar of Attainder heir to the Rt.Hon.Thomas Donegan(1634-31.12.1715),2nd Earl of Limerick of the earlier creation. Dr.Donegan's brother Daniel (1697-31.3.1779)was the ancestor of several of the families of Murphy later so prominent in the history of Cork.

James O'Mullane,brother of Andrew above.His will is to be found in the Society of Genealogists:"Irish Wills and Pleadings,1734-1739 ac.9750."The abstract reads:

Cork,Will of JAMES MULLANE of CORK,Mercht.To be buried in ancestors' tomb in Parish of Kilshannig.Decrees 5 lbs to be given to the Romish clergy of the parish of St.Mary's Shandon and spent at the discretion of Dr. Teigue McCarthy.Mentions testator's cousin Cornelius Sullivan,Mercht. 60 lbs for diet and lodging of Testor for several years past with other sums received by him already.To uncle Cornelius O'Mullane 5 lbs.To said uncle's daughter B ridget 5 lbs.To Rev. Tiegue O'Mullane 1 lb, and 2 lbs to be distributed to the Papist poor of Kilshannig.To his friends John, Daniel and Dominic Creedon of Mitchelstown 3 guineas each to buy mourning rings. To nephew John 5 lbs. To brother Andrew all the Residue. Witnesses Thos. Callaghan, Edmond Phin, Daniel OMullane. sgd. 26.7.1727. Prvd.4.9.1728.

It is worth noticing that the Creedons are relatives of the Therrys(Will of James Therry,1725),and of the Trants(Will of Henry Trant,1729)and therefore of the Fitz-Geralds of Castle Ishen,Barts.(extinct)(3).

Of Darby O'Mullane,son of Dermot O'Mullane, of Brittas,nothing further is known. He should not be confused with his cousin and namesake a merchant of Mallow,will sgd 23.10.1741,whose father was Patrick,Mercht. of Mallow and whose only daughter Margt. might be Margaret O'M.who married John Hely,1765.

John(Will,1709),Andrew(Will,1759),James(Will,1727),and Darby,had a sister who married Mahony(John?),and had a daughter,Ellen O'Mahony.

(1)This Helen Nagle is shown in a Pedigree Registered in Brussels in 1848 by a Hennessy descendant as aunt of Sir Richard Nagle(1633-1699)She is shown as of Annakissy, which was Sir Richard's home. (2)Acts of Andrew O'Mullane:on 6.4.1741 (105.263.73[illegible] he leased from James Lavallin of Trisherstown(sic)and Melchior his eldest son & heir the lands of South Coolowen,in North Liberties of Cork,then in Andrew's possession. With Mill,Millstream,Dam,etc.for 31 years,Rent.120 lbs. (3)Indenture of Lease of 31.5.1744(No.628.197.430556)shows that John O'Mullane let to Bartholomew Creedon of Whitechurch,orse.Temple Gall,"the middle quarter of Whitechurch 145 acres for the lives of Bartholomew Creedon,John Creedon eldest son of sd.Bart.Creedon,then aged 6 (his mother Mary Creedon orse.Mahony) and Arabella(Abby),eldest dau. of Cornelius Mahony of Blackpool.

To return to John O'Mullane,born 1710 or 1711,grandfather of the Liberator.In the Will of Darby O'M.,of Mallow,he is refered to as friend and relative 1741.In Deed 120.281.86886 of 21.4.1745 there is a mortgage of John O'Mullane and Honora his wife and Thomas O'Donnell,of Kilbreedy,Co.Limerick,Gent.;to Giles Powell of the 2nd Part and Roger Adair of the 3rd Part. For 280 lbs those of the first Part mortgage the lands of Kilbreedy of Bally-Allorgan 40 acres and Gragerns.Honora is known to have been an O'Donnell and Thomas is believed to be her father or brother.

No.1238.Prerog.Will of JOHN O'MULLANE(father of Catherine O'Mullane)of Cork.Sgd 11.1.1766,prvd.22(728).4.1766.In which he names Honora his wife.Children:John,Darby, Ellen,Catherine,Elizabeth.Executor:Mr.Christopher(Hussey or(Hennesy?)of Mallow advertised the lease of Brittas 24.8.1769. He was a brother of George,Richard H.of Cognac and James H.,later of Ballylegan).Witnesses:George Gould(father of Sir Francis,Bart.) Denis O'Donoghue,and Michael Berry.

Catherine O'Mullane:(mother of Daniel OConnell,the Liberator)Born c.1752,married 16.4.1771,Morgan O'Connell,Merchant,of Caher(siveen)and landowner of Carhen,heir presumptive of Maurice O'Connell,of Darrinane.(Arms registered 1668 by his great-granduncle,John O'Connell,of Ashton,co.Dublin,who sold the lands of CastleKnock to the King to form what is now the north-west portion of the Phoenix Park).Morgan,born 1739,d.1808.Of this marriage some 965 descendants have been recorded in the O'Connell Family Tracts. Her obituary appears in the Cork Mercantile Chronicle of 21.2.1817:

"At Cahen,Co.Kerry,in her 65th year,Catherine,relict of Morgan O'Connell,Esq. and mother to Couns.O'Connell. She was sister of the late OMullane."

JULIA CASEY DAUGHTER OF DANIEL CASEY AND MARY O'KEEFFE

Julia Casey, born c1821, Knocknagree Nohovaldaly Parish, dau. of Daniel Casey and_______ Morrissey. Julia was "Sheila Ruadh" or red haired Julia. She was said to have been a beauty. Sean O'Casey's father spoke of two sons of this Julia named Mike and Jerry Murphy with whom he often had at Knocknagree Fair. Julia and husband settled near New Market. Among Duhallow marriages 1845-1900 in the Reg. General's Office the only Murphy listed with sons Jerry and Mike in the New Market area was Cornelius Murphy, farmer of Inchatotane. He had sons Mike, Jerry and Andrew. No daughters found.

(1) Jeremiah Murphy, b. c. 1849, son of Cornelius Murphy farmer of Inchitotane married, New Market March 17, 1887, Mary Murphy of Reaahan, Kilmeen Parish, dau. of Dan Murphy, farmer.
(2) Michael Murphy, b. c. 1853 son of Corn. Murphy, farmer of Inchitotane, m. New Market, Feb. 16, 1897, Mary Kenneally of Glenlara, Kilmeen Parish, dau. of Daniel Kenneally farmer.
(3) Andrew Murphy, b. c. 1856, son of Cornelius Murphy, farmer of Inchitotane married New Market, Mar. 2, 1897, Mary Barry of Knockdew, dau. of Dan Barry, farmer.

HOULIHAN OF KILCUMMIN EAST

John Houlahan, is a rentor of land in Lissyviggeen, Townland, Killarney Parish, 1724-27. He seems to have established the Houlihans in Killarney Parish. In 1852, the name is more concentrated in Killarney than in any other parish in North Cork or East Kerry. His son or Grandson, Humphrey Houlahan, seems to have established the name in Kilcummin Parish East, perhaps by marrying the dau. of James Curtain.

Humphrey Houlahan, on January 11, 1743, pays half rent of 26 lbs. 5s. for Knockacarren, Knockacapill, (Kilcummin Parish East), et al let to James Curtain for 31 years in May 1727 (William Curtain had the lease of Knockacappul 1724-27); Humphrey Houlahan had paid 3/4 of the rental, (11 lbs. 6s.) of Ardshanvooly, Townland, Killarney Parish (perhaps the son or brother of Daniel Houlihan), Aug. 29, 1741-May 22, 1742; Daniel Houlahan, paid 1/2 rent for Ardshanvooly, 1740, 1741 and 1745. Humphrey Houlahan, pays 21 lbs. rent for Tiernaboule, Townland, Killarney Parish, 1755, will of Humphrey Huolahan gent Ardfert and Aghadoe, Co. Kerry, 1757, John Huolahan, gent, of Killarney 1765 (Ardfert and Aghadoe will). Patrick Leary, Darby Scannel, Cornelius Houlahan, Cornelius Dawly, Daniel Moynahan and Denis Houlahan farm 180 acres in Knockacoppul, Kilcummin East, (adjoined Stagmount) tithe list of 1825.

Michael Houlihan, farmer, b. 1811, d. Stagmount Jan. 8, 1886, age 75 years (son of Cornelius Houlihan). He m. Rathmore Parish Feb. 3, 1842, Bridget Crimen, dau. of Philip Crimen, of Clounts, b. 1818, d. Stagmount July 19, 1882, of dropsy, age 64 years. In Stagmount Townland Parish of Kilcummin East, Michael Houlihan and John Houlihan, son of Cornelius Houlihan, have 41 acres in farm land, (1852 Griffith's Valuation). Michael Houlihan and Bridget Crimen had eight children: one b. Stagmount c1843, another b. c1849, the others were:

(1) Julia Houlihan, b. Stagmount, Jan. 22, 1846;
(2) Cornelius Houlihan, b. Stagmount, Feb. 23, 1851;
(3) John Houlihan, b. Stagmount, Oct. 19, 1853, d. 1935 at 83 yrs. of age, m. c1884, Nancy Sheehan, of "Gib". They had 1 child, the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Monsignor Houlihan of St. Patrick Rectory, Watertown, Mass.
(4) Timothy Houlihan, b. Stagmount Apr. 21, 1856;
(5) Patrick Houlihan, b. Stagmount, Jan. 23, 1859;
(6) Catherine Houlihan, b. Stagmount, Oct. 6, 1861;

The Rt. Rev. Michael J. Monsignor Houlihan of 25 Chestnut Street, Watertown 72, Mass. writes that his Houlihan ancestors came to Killarney and Kilcummin Parish East from East of Knocknagree. Presumably they came from Ballyhoulihan East, Ballyhoulihan Middle and Ballyhoulihan West, Kilmeen Parish, Barony of Duhallow.

William Hoologhane, Kilnemartery Parish, Muskerry West 1722, administration

Cloyne.

Darby Holohan, of Carrigtwohill, administration Cork and Ross 1713, husbandman.

(O)CREMIN OCruimin,

Trace your ancestor here

Cremin in English, exclusively a west Munster surname; almost all the families are resident in counties Kerry and Cork, though in the 1659 "census" they were more numerous in the Co. Limerick barony of Connelloe, which adjoins these two counties. The tradition is that they are branch of the MacCarthys, It is interesting to note that in the Bantry district Matheson found the name Cremin interchangeable with MacCarthy. In sixteenth century records such as the Fiants and the Composition Book of Connacht the name MacCremon, MacKremin, often appeared in Co. Galway. This should not be confused with Cremin of Munster, which was a clerk's misspelling of MacRedmond, one of the many aliases of the Burkes of Connacht, and still extant.

Emigration from County Kerry

Emigration from Kerry began on a large scale circa 1845, then mainly to the east coast of the USA. Later emigration tended towards UK with a peak in 1940-60 period. Places to which people went include Springfield, Mass., Boston, Birmingham, London. Deportation to Australia and Tasmania in 1840-1900 period accounts for most of those of Irish extraction there.

In 1845-1848 the peak years of the Great Famine, Kerry lost about 30% of its population to death and emigration, with an excess mortality rate of +15%.

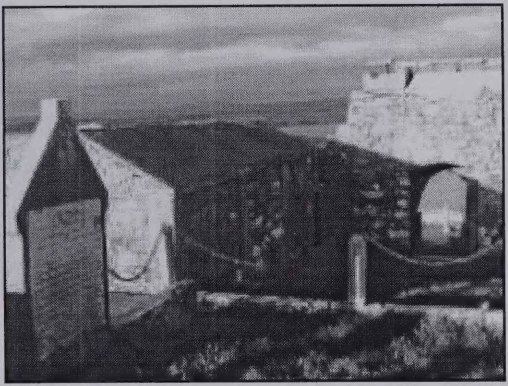
There is also a graveyard located in the grounds of Kilmoylan church ruin. In Kilmoylan graveyard, the oldest headstone is in memory of Owne Mulkere who died on the 10th of March 1808 at the age of 92. There is also a plaque to the Desmond and Crimmins families in the ruins of the old church.



Knockpatrick Graveyard

The fifth graveyard surrounds the historic site of Knockpatrick. The oldest headstone here is in memory of Fr Philip O'Nolain who died in 1738 after only one year as parish priest of Shanagolden. Also buried on Knockpatrick is Charlotte Smith O'Brien, the daughter of William Smith O'Brien who was a Member of Parliament in Westminster for over 20 years, where he represented his constituents with distinction. Charlotte died on June 3 1909 aged 63.

Graveyards

Robertstown Graveyard

There are five graveyards in the parish of Shanagolden/Foynes. Robertstown graveyard is situated in the grounds of a church ruin, about a quarter of a mile by road from the present day Robertstown church. At Robertstown graveyard the oldest headstone that we came across was from November 1788 and it was in memory of Joanna O'Brien.

Mountpleasant Graveyard

Mount Pleasant graveyard is situated close to the boundary line between the parish of Shanagolden/Robertstown/Foynes and Askeaton/Ballysteen parish. At Mount Pleasant the oldest headstone that we found was from 1817 but according to Canon O'Keeffe's records, the oldest headstone in the graveyard dates from 1785, and is in memory of a W. Casey who died aged 46.

Shanagolden graveyard is situated across from the Community Hall. The oldest headstone that we came across in Shanagolden cemetery dated from 1814. However, according to Canon O'Keeffe's records on the headstones in the cemetery, the oldest headstone is situated in the townland of Craggs. This well is located beside an inlet of the Shannon River and seaweed can be seen around it. The well is enclosed. The Parish council laid down a concrete walkway in the 1960s. A covered altar has been built beside the well. There is a plaque in memory of Noel O'Shaughnessy, who was from Borrigone, on the wall of the altar shelter.

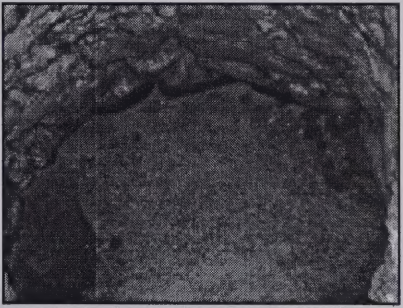
Covered Altar at Barrigone

The feastday of the well is the 15th of August. In the past, a large pattern was held on the 14th and 15th of August. Danaher tells us that bonfires lit up the night-time sky and a party continued throughout the night. The other days of devotion at the well were the Saturdays before the 1st of May and 24th of June.

It is claimed that the well can cure many illnesses. Rags were being left at the well as offerings. It is believed that the well takes its name from the holy monk St. Muirdebhair the wise whose feastday is on the 3rd of November (Maureen Jackson claims it is the 3rd of September). St. Muirdebhair baptised new Christians at the well. With the passing of time, the pronunciation changed, the "M" became a "B" and thus the well was called Barrigone.

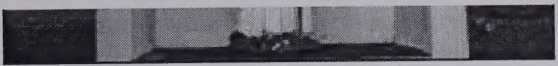


Interior of Barrigone Well

The legends about the well are many and varied. The water would not boil, the well moved when cursed and if your wish were to be granted, you would see a trout in the well. Another legend tells that the well spoke to a woman who was about to wash clothes in the well. A blind horse was brought to the well to be cured. The horse was cured but the owner became blind.

The most interesting legend about the well concerned a girl who was going to America. Before she left for America, the girl took some pebbles from the well. During the journey across the Atlantic, a fierce storm occurred and the girl threw the pebbles into the sea. The storm abated and the pebbles returned to the well.

Many old people believe that immersion in the spring could avert imminent death. The prayers that are said while doing a round of the well are Our Father, Hail Mary and Glory Be. Old people would pick up seven pebbles and drop one every time they completed a round at the well.



Statue of St. Patrick

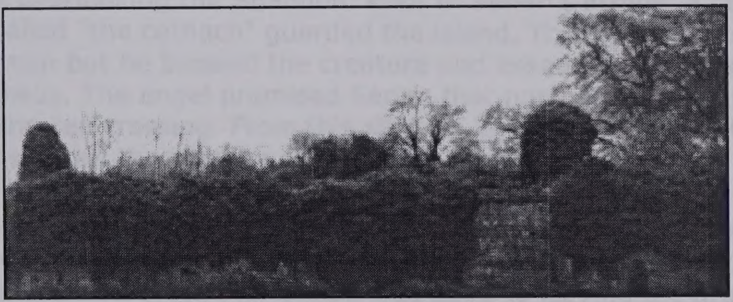
St Patrick's Well is situated on Knockpatrick hill. It is close to the foot of the hill, to the left of the road. A statue of St Patrick has been erected at the site and there are paths leading to the well from the road. Rounds, consisting of seven decades of the Rosary, are still made at the well. According to Danaher, rags were left as offerings on whitethorn trees by the well. Today, two evergreen trees grow by the well.

There are a number of legends concerning the well. The water from the well could cure sore eyes. The well moved when cursed. A druid tried to poison St Patrick here. St Patrick once put a curse on sinners but this was later transferred to birds and a dead bird can sometimes be found at the well on certain days of the year.

Danaher also says that St Patrick left a gold cup at the well. This cup or chalice was kept at the well until 1785 when a member of the O'Niadh (Neville) family, the stewards of the site of Knockpatrick, pledged it to a Mr Roche of Limerick. Mr. Roche then brought it to Paris where it was last heard of in 1840.

Danaher also mentioned St Senan's well in Shanagolden at the townland of Shanagolden Demesne. This well was covered in but it is believed that the well was situated where the pumphouse is now located. This pumphouse is across from the community hall.

Abbey



Manisternagalliaghduff Abbey

Manisternagalliaghduff Abbey, in the parish of Shanagolden/Robertstown/Foynes, is more commonly known as Mainstir na gCailleach Duff. This can be translated as the Monastery of the Black (Veiled) Nuns. The ruins are situated about two miles east of Shanagolden. Extensive ruins remain of this monastery, which was reputedly founded in the first half of the thirteenth century. According to Sean Spellissy, the Earl of Desmond complained at one stage that the nuns were leading "loose and dissolute lives". Although the then Pope, Pope Martin V ordered the suppression of the monastery in 1432, the monastery continued until the mid-sixteenth century when it finally closed. Westropp tells us that a new parish was formed around it in 1586.

St. Senan

During St Patrick's travels around Ireland on his mission to convert the people from paganism, he was asked about the future. St Patrick replied that a child named Sanus would succeed him as bishop and that he would convert the whole island.

It is believed that St Senan was born in 488 AD in Magh Lacha, four miles north east of Kilrush. At the age of fourteen, Senan refused to fight for his tribe the Corca Baiscinn in a local feud against the Corkamoroe. He hid in a haggard and fell fast asleep. The haggard was set ablaze and Senan was found by the Corkamoroe. He was set free, however, as they believed that God was with him.

Senan worked on the family farm as a young man and was driving cattle home one evening for his father when his way was blocked by the tide. Senan looked for food and lodgings from a man called Mieger but he was refused. Senan began to pray to God for help and the water receded long enough for him to get the cattle across the peninsula at Traught-Fannon. That night Mieger's place was destroyed by fire and all the menfolk were killed.

Senan entered the religious life under the tutelage of the holy Casidanus at Irrus before studying at Kilmanagh in Ossory under St Natalis. While here, St Senan performed a miracle by restoring life to an only son on the pleadings of a grief-stricken mother. Senan's popularity now increased and he decided to leave the monastery. For a number of years, Senan wandered the country and finally settled in at Ferns, Co.Wexford under Malachy. On Malachy's death, Senan became the abbot of the monastery.

On the way home from a pilgrimage in Rome, Senan received his Bishop's Staff. On his return to Ireland, he founded a monastery at Inniscarra in Cork. Senan was looking for "His place of Resurrection". He finally discovered it at Scattery Island when an angel showed him the island from a hill overlooking the Shannon. Prior to Senan's arrival, a sea monster called "the cathach" guarded the island. The monster rushed to devour Senan but he blessed the creature and asked him to depart in the name of Jesus. The angel promised Senan that none of his monks would drown in the sea crossing. From this story, a legend has grown claiming that pebbles from the island would protect against shipwreck.

Many people came to Scattery Island seeking a monastic life, including St Ciaran of Clonmacnoise and St Brendan from Kerry. On many occasions, the crowds were so great that Senan was close to leaving the area but he always stayed on the island. His private retreat was at Bishop's Island, which is a sea-stack on the West Clare coast. Senan lived in a beehive hut while on the island, which was surrounded by vertical cliffs on all sides.

It is believed that Senan died in 544 AD and is buried on Scattery Island in a place called 'St Senan's Bed'. Senan's feastday is celebrated on the 8th of March. As St Senan was a bishop, he created the diocese of Inis Chathaigh. The diocese survived until the Synod of Rathbrassil in 1111 AD when it was divided up amongst the dioceses of Ardfert, Killaloe and Limerick.

Senan also formed a community in Plouzané in northwest Brittany. Although the exact date when Senan visited here is unclear, Noel O'Shaughnessy claims that he visited Tours on his homeward journey from Rome. Jean Francois Simon, an historian, discovered the link between Plouzané and Kilrush in 1978. Plouzané, when translated, means 'Senan's Parish'. The 'Life of St. Senan' was written in 1629 by Albert Le

Grand and translated in 1993 by Jean-Michel Picard.

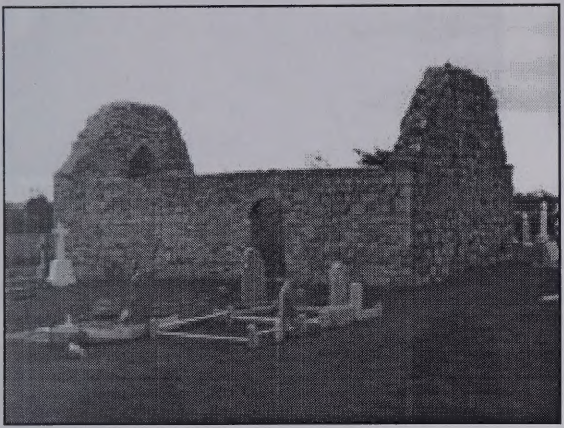
Old churches

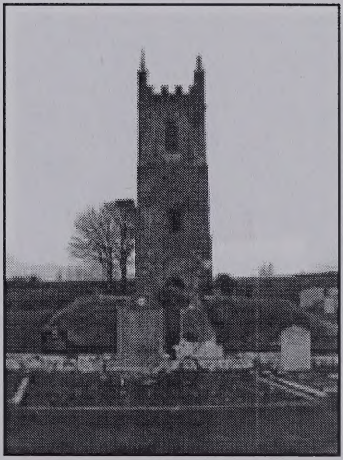


Ruin of Church at Robertstown

The first church in Robertstown was near Churchfield. Behind the present day church in Robertstown is the ruin of the previous Robertstown church and graveyard. The grounds are tidy and well kept and the church ruins have been partially rebuilt. Westropp states that Robert de Guer probably founded the church in the early part of the thirteenth century. Ardineer is a townland in Robertstown, and although there is no trace of a church in the present townland, it is believed that the original Robertstown church may have been situated here.

The church ruin in Shanagolden was converted into a place of Protestant worship and a tower was built on the site when the conversion took place. As there is a mention of a "lofty square tower built in 1815" in Postal directory of Munster, it can be assumed that this is one and the same tower.

Kilmoylan Church



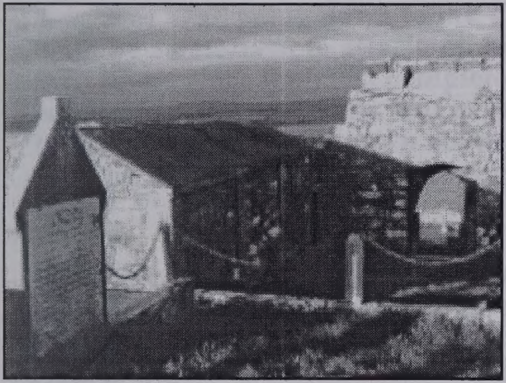
Tower at Shanagolden

About a mile from Shanagolden are the ruins of another church. Kilmoylan church is at the eastern end of the parish and Westropp measured the church as 35 feet by 18 feet. The west gable fell in the Night of the Big Wind in 1839.

Ruins in Mount Pleasant Graveyard

Altar in Mount Pleasant Graveyard

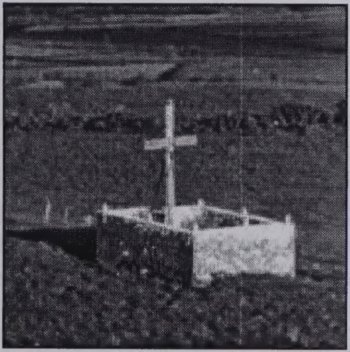
There is also a church in Mount Pleasant graveyard. Near the church ruin is an altar. Both the church ruin and the altar are in good condition.



Kockpatrick Church Ruins

Knockpatrick church is situated 572 feet above sea level and gives a stunning view of the Shannon Estuary and the surrounding countryside. According to legend, St Patrick consecrated the church at Knockpatrick when he visited the area in 448 AD. He also blessed all that lay west of him, as he never ventured as far as Kerry. Westropp wrote that the Danes burned Knockpatrick in 1114.

To the east of the church there are six stones that are called 'Suíochán Pádraig', St Patrick's Seat. According to Mainchín Seoighe, the traditional religious practice at Knockpatrick involved reciting three Rosaries: one around the wall of the burial grounds, one while moving clockwise around St Patrick's Well and the third at Suíochán Pádraig.



Suiochan Padraig

Westropp also mentions churches at Aughinish and Ardaneer but the sites of these churches are unknown today. There was also an old church at Dysert or Morgans as it is now called. It is believed that this church was located near Barrigone well. The name Morgans was derived from the Irish Muingeadain, meaning a 'maritime spot'. The church is believed to have been built in the 15th century. It is said to have been built by two sisters, but neither their names nor their surnames are remembered.

WALLSEND'S HISTORY

Wallsend got its name from the fact that it was the eastern terminus of Hadrian's Wall with a fort and a length of Wall going down to the Tyne. At this point the river could not be forded and the steep slope would be a deterrent to attackers. In modern times the meaning of Wallsend would seem to refer to its demolition, since it almost completely disappeared under shipyards; much stone had been previously used for housing and walls. But in recent years the site of the fort has been carefully excavated, so that in some ways more is known about it than any other fort on the Wall. It was intended to develop the area for light industry, but a change of heart or mind had taken place and it has become a historical site for visitors.

The fort covers four acres with three principal gateways north of the wall. It was discovered that the area had been under cultivation before the Romans took over. The fort was built of stone and had a strong surrounding wall with towers at the corners and guarding the gates. There were ten barracks, six in the northern half and four in the south. In the centre was the headquarters with offices and assembly places. On one side was the hospital and two granaries; on the other the commandant's house. There were also workshops and on either side between the central buildings and barracks, there was space for parade and exercising. Unlike some forts on the Wall, the gateways had no partial blocking and continued open as double gateways.

During a long period of occupation there were changes - barracks in the third century were changed into chalets with separate accommodation. Later still in the fourth century some timber-strip-like houses were constructed, and it has been suggested, for family occupation. The fort site has been marked out on the ground, and there is a Heritage Centre adjacent in Buddle Street, which helps with interpretation, archaeology, local history and shipbuilding, which still goes on. John Buddle, honoured in this way, was a colliery viewer.

Wallsend and Willington, in the Middle Ages, belonged to the Prior and Convent of Durham. After the Dissolution, Willington passed into lay hands, where as Wallsend was part of the endowment of the Dean and chapter of Durham. The old chapel of Holy Cross, consisted of nave and chancel, and its ruins still stand on the top of the steep hillside. It fell into disrepair and was said to be the haunt of witches. The new church of St Peter was built from 1807 to 1809 and enlarged in 1892. The font is that from Holy Cross. A new church was built for the west parish in 1866 with a tower to the east end and dedicated to St. Luke.

In 1800 Wallsend was a village with seven farms - Wallsend Hall, Mount Pleasant, Village Farm, Red House, The Grange and Middle Farm, White House and Carville Hall. The latter was formerly Cosyns Hall. Cosyn was a Newcastle draper, and Horsley c. 1720 noted a number of Roman stones built into his house. In the garden was an old sundial inscribed:

Time tide doth haste. Therefore, make haste We shall (die all) is implied by the dial itself.

The hall was rebuilt in 1750 by another draper, Robert Carr, related to the Carrs of Etal and renamed Carville. In the late nineteenth century the estate was purchased by Joseph Wigharn Richardson, and the hall pulled down. Mount Pleasant was purchased by Wallsend Slipway Company. Swan Hunter took over the lands of the Alkali Works and used them for their east shipyard.

At that time shipbuilding was predominant and in 1903 Swan Hunter combined with Wigham

Richardson of Walker. In 1906 to the delight of all around on a public holiday they launched their vessel, the 'Mauretania' of 31,938 tons. This and a sister ship the 'Lusitania' were built for the Cunard Gompany and they were the pride of the Tyne. They won back the Blue Riband of the Atlantic from the Germans and held it for22 years. In 1915 'Lusitania' was brutally sunk by a German U-Boat. The 'Ark Royal' (1981) and the 'Esso Northumbria" (1968) (253,000 tonns) were more impressive in some ways, but never more admired than 'Mauretania powered by Parson's turbines.

An incident often recorded about Wallsend is when Prince Nicholas of Russia, from 1825 known as the 'Iron Tsar', had arranged to visit Wallsend Colliery. Having put on his protective gear, he was taken to the pithead. Seeing the black hole, he was afraid and likened it to 'the mouth of hell', so thee-did not receive its distinguished visitor.

Willington Quay

Willington Quay was the place where George Stephenson set up house at his marriage in Newburn Church (1802). In 1803 his son Roben was born here The cottage has gone, but is remembered in the 'Stephenson Memorial Schools'. George Stephenson was self-educated, but he made sure that his son had proper schooling as well as practical training in engineering. The Stephensons moved on, but the Willington viaduct is a reminder of railways~ 1,050 feet long, 76 feet high with 7 segmental arches each of 120 feet span. At Willington there was a haunted house - Willington Mill, subject to all kinds of unnatural noises and ghosts that drove residents away

Willington had a ropery, taken over from 1900 by Hood Haggie and Clellands who established a ship repairing yard. There were other industries but Howdon -Pans was obviously famous for salt. There were salt pans here when the property belonged to the Prior of Durham and these continued. Salt was most; important for the preservation of meat and fish. From 1702 salt was taxed..

Probably on account of severe taxation the salt pans were given up after 1787. Glass makirig was started in Howdon in the first half of the seventeenth century - glass makets were brought in from lorraine. One family were Tyzacks

John Tyzack, a Quaker, lived at Howdon Hall. The Henzells also appear as owners of glassworks, and Joshua was manager at the time when they trans-ferred to Lemington as tile Northumberland Glass Company. The shore at Howdon proved difficult for shipbuilding. The dredging of the river raised the water level and caused floods. From 1866 the level of the land was raised by ballast from ships and Howdon Hall, the oldest house in the parish was demolished. A popular local song was founded on the fact that here was the place where the river was crossed at Jarrow.

Nowadays Howdon to Jarrow has another form of crossing - under the river. In 1951 a pedestrian and cycle tunnel was opened to the public, and in 1967 a much larger tunnel for motor vehicles, relieving some of the strain on the bridges, but traffic was still too crowded. Ferries still operate across the river.
